Cholera is increasing in Spain.

The high license bill was defeated for lack of three votes.

Senator Wm. A. Evarts was the Memorial Day orator in New York City.

The detectives couldn't capture Abe Buzzard, so he gave himself up to the authorities.

Beecher's son has been given a fat office. That will pay for one Mugwump's services.

The great highway connecting New York and Brooklyn is likely to become known as the "bridge of suicides."

"Not all men can be professional men, and not all women can live by exercising their accomplishments." —Gen. Geo. B. McClellan.

It requires extra vigilance to keep the cranks from jumping off the Brooklyn bridge since one poor fool lost his life in the attempt.

The difficulty of teaching an old dog new tricks is paralleled by the trouble which Mr. Cleveland finds in teaching civil service reform to a spoils party.

The Hon. "Sunset" Cox is drawing his salary as Minister to Turkey although he still lingers in this country. If he was a Republican, this would be called "robbing" the treasury.

Rev. Philips Brooks is a noted preacher without a "D. D." Such a man needs no such handle to his name, but nevertheless Oxford University will honor itself by conferring it this year.

Wednesday, July 8th, has been fixed upon as the day for holding the Republican convention at Harrisburg to nominate a candidate for state treasurer. The state teachers' association will be in session at the same time,so that the week is likely to be a lively one at the state capital.

Postmaster General Vilas, a few days ago, demanded the resignation of Meade, the newly-appointed Kuklux postmaster at Hazlehurst,Miss., but there is no evidence that he has ever received it. Meade is not disposed to let go without a struggle, and there is a large-sized public curiosity to see what the Administration is going to do about it.

The capstone of the Washington monument was shattered by lightning on Saturday. To discover the extent of the damage a telescope was directed to the top of the monument, the damage not being visible to the naked eye. Precautions had been taken to avert damage by lightning, but the result shows that electricity has a power which man cannot successfully contend against.

Beecher gets along rapidly. He now denies that God is the direct author of the Bible, and says that Slavery and Mormonism are both taught by the Bible and that the Mormons "believe in it like thunder." Beecher's dignified rhetoric is as powerful as his logic. Beecher evolves "like thunder," making a loud noise and then dying away in the distance.

Emperor William, of Germany, has so successfully withstood the repeated attacks of disease the past few years, that the public are not startled by the announcement of a new prostration confining him to his room and bed. At his age, the life tenure is so uncertain that he may drop off at any time. His iron constitution cannot avert the fatal blow many years longer.

Colonel Snowden's Resignation.

We copy the following very sensible comments on the Col. Snowden's resignation of the superintendency of the United States Mint from the Philadelphia Evening Telegram:

There is an exceedingly interesting letter extant which was sent as a Christmas present, being written about that time, by Grover Cleveland, President-elect of the United States, to George William Curtis, Chairman of the Civil Service Reform Association. It was an answer to a request to know what his policy, as President, would be in regard to the letter and spirit of the Civil Service law, and, in brief, it said that he would make no removals from office except for cause, no appointments to office except for merit. It was declared by the organs of the Civil Service Reform Association to be a most satisfactory letter, and to the host of old, experienced, able, and faithful Federal officials it was most gratifying, as it gave them positive assurance that their ability and fidelity would be cordially recognized by their retention in place. There have lately, however, appeared things which apparently contradict that letter, and make it seem absurd. Here, for instance, is the case of Colonel Snowden, Superintendent of the Mint, who has resigned that office because he felt that the pressure brought against him to force his resignation compelled him, in order to maintain unimpaired his own self respect, to resign it. Day after day the newspapers received reports from Washington, which claimed to be official, or semi-official, that he was to be removed, and his successor was named as if by authority. Colonel Snowden felt that, though for twenty-eight years he had been faithful in the discharge of his duty; that through successive Presidents his faithfulness and ability had been recognized by the Government; and though Judge Folger, the then Secretary of the Treasury, had written to him upon hearing that it was designed to nominate him for Mayor of Philadelphia, begging him to decline such nomination if offered, as the Government could not spare him from the Mint, his services being invaluable to it: it was his duty to resign, and he has resigned. We think he was wrong to do so, and shall continue to think so unless the President shall accept his resignation. In that case, of course, the President will fully justify Colonel Snowden in what he has done. But it is not easy to believe that the President will accept the resignation of an officer of such distinguished fitness, experience, and integrity; one, indeed, who has always conducted the Mint as a non-partisan, as a purely business office, with honor to himself and infinite usefulness to the country. If ever there was a case wherein the administration could prove its respect for civil service reform, this certainly affords it the most conspicuous opportunity. Colonel Snowden has done what he thinks his duty by resigning; the President should do what the country knows to be his duty, by refusing to accept his resignation. We cannot believe that the President will in this matter disappoint public expectation.

Thomas J. Cluverius has been declared guilty of murder in the first degree by a Richmond jury. The evidence was wholly circumstantial, but it was satisfactory to the jurymen and the mass of the public. Will he be hung? Colored men are often hung at the South without trial. But there are few cases of the hanging of whites—John Brown being a notable exception.

The floods in Texas last week were equally remarkable for the quantity of water that fell in a short time and the extent of country covered by the storm. Only very unusual meteorological conditions could have occasioned such a terrific and widespread down pour.

Bayard on Jefferson.

Secretary Bayard in his address at Columbia, Missouri, remarks the Pittsburg Commercial Gazette, paid fitting tributes to the wisdom and patriotism of Jefferson and Hamilton, and "with much humility and some hesitation," gave his (Bayard's) honored grandfather due credit for having saved the country from threatened disruption and anarchy in the memorable struggle between Jefferson and Burr for the Presidency. It was "the man whom I have the honor to call my grandfather," says Secretary Bayard, "who, taking counsel with Mr. Hamilton, and learning from him that the country is greater than the party, that the Union was worth preserving," cast the vote that made Jefferson President and saved the Republic from wreck and ruin.

That was a noble and patriotic act, because Grandfather Bayard was a political opponent of Jefferson; but "the Federalist from Delaware, instructed by Alexander Hamilton, cast his vote for Thomas Jefferson." "Therefore," adds the now distinguished grandson of the "Federalist from Delaware," "when we look to the past for lessons of true history, let us not fail to respect the dignity of the men of that day."

Coming down to a later day, Secretary Bayard alluded to the settlement of the Presidential contest of 1876 as illustrating the fact that "in this American Nation there lingers something stronger than party—something that teaches the American man to rise to the dignity of his country's demands."

What a strange and striking omission, however, that the Secretary made no reference to the war of the Rebellion and the numerous and gratifying evidences which it furnished of the superiority of patriotism to party! The Union was then threatened as it had never been threatened before, and, as in the dark days of 1800, "there seemed to be the probability that our Union would fall to pieces—nothing but dissolution seemed at hand."

In 1861, when there was a dread crisis approaching, and when every American was called upon to lay aside party ambitions and "rise to the diguity of his country's demands," what response did Mr. Bayard make? Did he fly to Jefferson and Hamilton for counsel? Did he invoke the spirit of his revered grandfather and place country above party? No! His voice was for disunion and secession! He was a traitor at heart, but without the courage to take up arms in defense of the damnable sentiments which he uttered. And, let it not be forgotten, the fact that he failed to "rise to the dignity of his country's demands" at a time when it was in the throes of dissolution, was no bar to his preferment when the party which he placed above country came once more into power. If his treason did not win him his present high position, his intense devotion to the Union certainly did not.

How the United States Can Extend Her Territory.

Why should not British Columbia be a part of the United States instead of a British province? The inhabitants of that province have reason to be very angry with England because of promises made to them which were never kept, while they are daily becoming more attached to the western portion of the United States. In return for the customs receipts of British Columbia going into the Canadian treasury, it was promised that the Canadian Pacific Railroad should be extended as far as Victoria. This has not been done. Thus, while the relations between British Columbia and Canada were thus strained, an active intercourse with the citizens of Washington Territory and Oregon was rapidly cementing the trade and social relations of the two peoples. On no part of the long border line which separates the United States from Canada are the friendly relations of the two peoples so strongly marked as on the shores of the Pacific. The great annual holiday ot Victoria is the celebration of the Queen's birthday. On that day crowds of American excursionists from Seattle and Port Townsend and other towns on Puget Sound flock to Victoria to join in the sports and pleasures of the celebration. They are cordially welcomed, as are the Victorians when they make their return visit to the Sound to join in celebrating the Fourth of July. These international festivities have now been enjoyed for several years, unmarred by a single altercation or unpleasant accident.

Coal is the principal product of Vancouver Island. It finds its chief market at San Francisco, and in return the people of Victoria and other towns on Vancouver buy a large part of heir supplies in San Francisco and Portland. Since the refusal of the Canadian Government to proceed with the construction of the island railway, the Legislature of British Columbia has taken the enterprse in hand, and has entered into a contract with Stanford, Crocker, and Huntingdon of the Central Pacific With Mr. Dunsmuir, the astute Scotch owner of the Wellington coal mines, which are said to be returning him a net income of $600,000 a year, these American citizens are adively at work constructing the railway.

This, while the ties which connect British Columbia with Canada are weakening, interests are growing up which lead the province into closer relations with the United States. On our side there is a strong and growing disposition to encourage the friendly sentiment of the interesting province which lies between Washington Territory and Alaska. The country properly belongs to the United States, and all that is necessary is for British Columbia to secede from the Canadian Government and claim the protection of the United States, and we'll defend that claim with the sword if necessary.

Since the death of the Washington swimming master in attempting to jump from the Brooklyn bridge a mania has developed for committing suicide in that way, and anyone in New York or Brooklyn who is disposed to take the leap into the dark will at once seek a convenient spot on the bridge and endeavor to make the great and fatal leap. But the bridge police are vigilant and have thus far succeeded in foiling every such effort. Usually poverty is the cause for this attempted suicide, there being two recent instances of this kind. This is the sad story told by one of them: "It is not frivolity that drives me to take this step. Twelve weeks out of work, two small children and nothing more to eat. I am the father of a family; our clothes and furniture are all gone. I have looked for work and have not found it. Finally we have been turned out into the street. Everything is according to law. I don't wan't to steal and can't beg. Such is the world, and it belongs to us, and we are in it, and can starve."

General Crook may be relied upon to put an end to the Apache outbreak, although the red-skins have already committed shocking atrocities. The cause of the rebellion, which has broken out simultaneously in several places, has not been made clear; but we may credit the statement that whisky drove many of the bucks to the war-path. If bal whisky and bad agents could be got rid of, the country would soon hear no more of Indian outrages. This has been proved by General Crook in his treatment of the Navajoes, one of the fiercest of the Apache tribes, who in two or three years have become peaceable and industrious.

Dr. Talmage believes that burials at sea, as at present conducted, are heathenish and barbarous.

Hon. John Patton for State Treasurer.

Of all the business men in the State of Pennsylvania we know of none so eminently well fitted by training and high character for the office of State Treasurer as Curwensville's most prominent citizen, Hon. John Patton.

As a business man he has few equals and no superior. As a gentleman of character he has the entire respect of all who have ever heard of his philanthropy and liberality, and his reputation in this respect extends beyond the boundaries of the State. Never seeking office, he has occasionally been called to places of high position and always served the people honestly and honorably.

Besides these qualities he is a Christian gentleman.

Several gentlemen of great worth have been mentioned in connection with this office, but we are sure that there is none in either party whose name alone will be such a tower of strength as that of the gentleman whom the Republican puts forward; and the nominating convention, in making Mr. Patton their choice, will give the Republicans a candidate against whom not a word can be said, but who will have volumes said in his favor.

The Watchman of last week contained two editorial articles—one entitled "No Tampering with the Verdict of the People" and the second "Justice to the President." The first was an argument to prove that the people in electing Cleveland expressed the verdict that they want Republicans out of office and therefore the appointing power must remove Republicans and substitute them with Democrats. The inevitable conclusion of the article was that because a man is a Republican is sufficient reason why he shall be "put out" of office. The second article did not appear to agree with this sentiment, however as it is an apology for the President's apparent laxness in not turning Republican officials out wholesale, saying that present Republican incumbents of office are not put out, because of want of cause for so doing. Now, if the argument of the first article is correct the second is inconsistent as cause already exists. The reason for the articles is however, plain. Joe Furey wants the postoffice, but don't get it; and in the hope that the coveted commission will come along soon he will give the President as much "taffy" as that official can digest. A private telegram to this paper says that the President read the "apology" but not the other article and he consequently feels quite happy.

A subject which has been talked of in Bellefonte is the establishment of a system of fire alarms. We do not know that our town is sufficiently large or important enough to warrant or require anything of the sort, and we only make the suggestion for what it is worth. The telephone, which extends into all parts of the town, might be utilized to call the central station designating the locality of the fire should one occur. Then the person at the central could immediately strike an alarm, so arranged as to designate by the alarm the part of town in which the fire is raging. There would be no more searching for fire as was the case during two recent fires—one at Walter Bayard's drug store and the other at McCoy & Linn's forge.

Sir Peter Lumsden is reported to be telling some things that reflect severely upon the English management of affairs in Afghanistan. The government has ordered him to keep quiet, but Sir Peter continues to talk. Between the Government and Sir Peter we believe the people will take sides with the latter.

The saddest thought inspired by the approaching adjournment of the Pennsylvania Legislature is that it may soon be called together again in extra session.

Poetry.

HIS WIFE.

Oh, yes, my wife is charming,
So everybody says;
She's amiable and gentle,
With sweet and winning ways.

Her beauty is the least of all,
The graces she possesses,
She's kind to the unfortunate,
Relieving their distresses.

She makes our home a paradise,
Gives joy to all about her;
And often times I wonder how
I did so long without her.

Of household duties she displays
A knowledge most surprising;
New schemes our comfort to increase
She's constantly devising.

Such pies she makes! I cannot think
Of them without emotion;
And biscuits, too, as light as foam
Afloat upon the ocean.

A splendid cook she is—in brief
There s no one can surpass her;
Where did I get her? Well, she is A graduate of Vassar.

She stood beside the counter,
The day he'll ne'er forget;
She thought the muslin dearer
Than any she'd seen yet;
He watched her playful fingers
The silks and satins toss,
The shopman looked uneasy
And felt a little cross.

"Show me some velvet ribbon,
Barege and satin turc,"
She said, "I want to purchase!"
Then gave the goods a jerk.
The shopman, all obedience,
Brought satins, silks and crapes,
At length, with hesitation,
She bought a yard of tape!

—Tid-Bits.

Nigh to an office newly made.
A hungry and thirsty stranger strayed;
He peeped through the keyhole, lingering long,
As he chanted a strain from an old-time-song,
And the sad words fell from his lips so thin—
"I want to get in! I want to get in!"

Close by the office fire there sat,
A well-dressed citizen, sleek and fat.
Soft was his chair as a throne might be,
But he mournfully played with the office key,
And sobbed, as he listened the stranger's shout—
"I'll have to get out! I'll have to get out!"

Our Story Teller.

Uncle Alick's Prophecy.

S. A. WEISS.

"Yes, Robert, I know its a poor place, but I don't fell willing to give it up. Its been my home—and my father's before me; and I hope"—with a sigh—"that you'd ha' taken to it, and made it as good as 'twas in his time. Your own poor father never had any luck with it."

"Nor do I expect any, mother. It takes a natural liking and a natural talent to succeed at any business, and I've none for farming. I wish I could persuade you to sell the place, and let me set up a store at the cross-roads. We could make more there, without the labor and care that it costs us here."

"I ain't so sure of that, Robert. Perhaps if you'd marry and settle down here, with a good managing wife to help you, you'd do better and be better satisfied; and if it weren't for old David Gardner's obstinacy you and Letty—"

"Enough, mother!" interrupted Robert, flushing all over his handsome, sun-burnt face; "its no use to say anything more on that subject. I'll never ask any woman to marry me so long as I know that I couldn't afford her a suitable help, or so long as there's a mortgage hanging over the roof that I'd bring her to. A father's hardly to be blamed for saying that his daughter shall never marry a poor man, to break herself down as her mother did, with work. So that's settled."

"If it wa'nt for the mortgage," she said, slowly, "we might get along. 'Twas that worried your father into his grave—that, and not finding the gold streak—"

Her son made an impatient movement and she added:

"Don't you think you could get a little more time allowed us, Robert. Maybe when the crop's sold, and the apples are cider—"

"Mr. Davis won't hear of it, mother. I saw him yesterday and talked it over, but he insisted it must all be paid by the first of August—ah, here he comes now!"

Robert went out to meet the well-dressed, sharp-eyed man in his handsome buggy, while his mother remained on the back porch, with sleeves rolled up, mixing dough for the poultry.

"There ain't many of 'em to feed now," she said, talking aloud to herself, as she had been accustomed with her late husband. "What with cholera and gaps in the chickens, and weak legs in the turkeys, I hain't had any but ill-luck with the lot of 'em this year. Then there's old Speck missing—the best layer of 'em all, and Goldstreak's fit for nothing' sence her leg's broke. Ah, me! I'm mightily afeared that she's the only goldstreak we'll ever know on this place!"

"What's that about a goldstreak, Mrs. Langly?" exclaimed a clear, young voice.

And a girl with a sweet face and bright brown eyes and a blue-striped chintz dress fitting perfectly to her trim figure, stood smiling before her.

Mrs. Langly's face brightened immediately.

"Why, Letty, how you do always manage to take one by surprise, as if you'd risen out o' the yearth or dropped down from the clouds! Well, child, you're welcome; and how's your mother?"

Letty made a suitable reply, and explained how she had been sent by her mother on some little business connected with quilt-patterns, for the invention of which Mrs. Langly was famous.

"You shall have my gold-streaked pattern," said the old lady, promptly. "Its the handsomest of all, and I've never before given it away—not even to the minister's wife, who was so taken with it."

"Gold-streaked again!" said Letty smiling. "That appears to be a favorite name with you."

"Ah, my dear, I've cause to think a heap of that name! Maybe it would be better if I hadn't; and maybe again—well, no one can tell yet."

There was a moment's silence, when she resumed:

"I dare say, Letty, you've thought me obstinate and selfish in opposing Rob's wish to sell the farm. But I had a reason, child, more on his account than mine; and I think I may's well tell it to you. I know you're to be trusted not to go and spread it among the neighbors, who would no doubt be hinting that I had better be put in a lunatic asylum. Maybe you'll think so yourself, but at any rate Ill let you judge.

"You see," she continued, as she slowly worked in another handful of corn meal, "the Langlys come of Scotch stock, and it's been said that Rob's greatgrand'ther Langly, over in Scotland, had the gift o' second-sight—that is, seeing and knowing things that are going to happen. I've heard a good deal of talk about it in the family, but never did think much of it, though my husband—poor departed Jeems—believed in it as firmly as he believed in summer and winter. He said these things come by a mysterious law of natur'. Well about eight years ago old Uncle Alick Langly paid us a visit on this farm. I hadn't seen him but once before in my life—for he lived down to Tennessee, a long way from here. Him and Jeems, they walked all over the farm, and it was a far better cultivated place then than now, though nothin' compared to what it was in my father's time. Jeems' Uncle Alick didn't seem to think much of it, though. Then he went over the country looking up lands to buy for his son, Alick, who thought of coming this way to settle, if a good prospect offered. But in the end he gave up the idea, as he couldn't find jest what he wanted."

Here she began slowly and deliberately to clear the dough from her hands. Letty seated on the top step of the porch, looked up with quiet, expectant eyes.

"The day that he went away," continued Mrs. Langly, with a long drawn breath, "he was standing here—yes, right here where you are a sitting—and looking all around him on the farm. All of a suddent he says, 'Jemmy—Jemmy and Mary'—turning to me—'I've one thing to say to you before I go. Stick to your farm, for there's a streak of golden luck in it.' Of course I asked him what he meant; but all he would say was, 'I've seen it—I've seen it by the power that's given us to look into the future. I've seen a streak of gold luck running through your land that's to better your fortunes in good time. Don't part with it until your luck's found.' And that same day he went away, and the first we heard of him after he got home, was that he was dead."

There was another pause, and Letty said:

"And you think there is really a vein of gold to be found on your farm?"

"Jeems thought so. To his dying day he believed in it. Goodness! how much he thought about that gold-streak! Why half his time he spent in hunting, and digging, and scratching around; and at last he went off to town and tried to get two men who were used to the business, to come out and examine the land to disk'ver gold.

"But they only laughed at him, and said that no gold would ever be found in Pike county. And then he thought maybe there was gold money hid somewhere on the place; so he dug under all the rocks, and looked in all the hol'er trees, and was speshly keerful in digging in the garden.

"But no pot of gold ever turned up; and, meanwhilst, the farm got neglected, and it seemed that more bad than good luck was coming to us. Still, almost on his death-bed, he said to me:

"'Mary, don't you sell the farm if you can help it. I believe, as faithfully as I believe in anything, that the streak of gold-luck will turn up some time. No Langly ever yet prophesied what didn't come to pass.'

"That was what he said; and so now, Letty, you know as Robert knows, why I am unwilling to sell the farm."

"And what does Robert think about it?" inquired the girl, with a faint flush on her cheek.

"Oh, he thinks it all nonsense—about the gold, and the second sight, and all. And as for me—why sometimes I can't but agree with him. And then, again, there's a feeling that they may be somethin' in it, after all—and that it may be given to some folks to see what's going to happen in the future. Just as we knew there were prophets of old, to say nothin' o' the Witch of Endor."

Just at this moment they heard Mr. Davis' buggy roll away, and Robert came around the corner of the house.

He looked a little excited; but that might be from finding Letty there. He walked home with her across the fields to the next farm. When he returned he said quite abruptly:

"Mother, Mr. Davis wants to buy the farm. He's offered more for it than I ever dreamed it would bring. He seems quite anxious to get it; and when I told him that you objected to part with it, he actually offered to let us off with the balance of the mortgage, provided the business is settled at once."

"Why, Robert, what can he mean?"

"I don't know. There's something in it I don't understand; but if you've no objection, I'll go over to G— to-morrow and see Lawyer Pennel about it."

Robert had expected to be only one day from home; but he staid three. And, meanwhile, the one hired boy, going to bring the cows from the meadow, reported that there were a number of men passing through the farm, looking about, examining the ground, and acting in a very strange and unaccountable manner.

"Good gracious!" thought Mrs. Langly. "They surely cannot be suspicioning the gold streak?"

She was very anxious for her son's return. When he did come she noticed the bright glance, and the brisk manner in which he dismounted from his horse and came straight toward her as she stood at the steps to welcome him.

"Well, Rob, I see you've got good news."

"The best of news, mother," he answered, cheerfully.

The tears came into her eyes

"I shall hate to give up the old home after all."

"You need not give it up, mother. We won't sell the farm. Mr. Davis was sharp," he added, contemptuously, "but fortunately we escaped the trap he baited so nicely."

"Why, what is it all about, Rob?"

"Why, only this, mother: They are going to run a new railroad through our farm."

"What!" exclaimed the old lady in dismay. "Cut our farm in two with a railroad and spile it completely? So that's what those men were after when they came trespassing on our place yesterday! But I'll see whether they'll ever venture to do it again! Surely, Rober, you'll not submit to see the farm ruined and—"

"Hush, hush, mother" he exclaimed. "Calm yourself, and let me explain."

And when he made it al clear to her how the passage of the new railroad through their farm would make them comparatively rich—and how there would probably be a station established in their neighborhood, and even perhaps on their very land, which would ten-fold increase in value—and how in that case he might establish a store there, and after awhile a postoffice, already needed, with various other prospective advantages—his mother could scarcely realize the idea of such good fortune.

But her first words showed how much she had the happiness of her son at her motherly heart, when she said, with moistening eyes:

"You and Letty can marry now, Robert!"

Some few months after this time, Mr. Robert Langly stood with his mother on one side, and his wife leaning on his arm on the meadow-slope, watching from a distance the busy laborers throwing up a clay embankment, where the new railroad was to be laid.

The sun was slowly sinking to the horizon, and his almost level rays shone redly on the yellow clay, freshly turned up and gleaming in a long, bright line against the green fields beyond.

"Dear me!" said Mr. Langly, "I never knew there was so much clay on the land; for all father's talk about a clay substratum over there' and his plowing in clover and marl. How red and yellow it looks! and how that long line of wet clay shines in the sunlight, like a streak of gold."

At this, Letty turned with bright eyes, full of a sudden surprise.

"A streak of gold? Oh, Robert, how strange! Can this be the streak of gold-luck that your father's Uncle Alick foretold?"

Mrs. Langly sank on the grassy bank, quite "shaken" as she declared, with this realization of the fulfillment of the prophecy.

"Maybe," she said, presently, he did r'ally see it by the gift o' second-sight; or maybe, being a clever, far-sighted man, he might have got an idear that a railroad would have to run from G—— to L—— some time, and pass right through the farm, or maybe, he might have heard somebody say as much, when he was speculatin' round the country. I'd like to know which it was."

And to this day she has not made up her mind on that point.

She Caught Him on the Fly.

"Do you think the cholera will reach here next Summer, Mr. Boothby!" she murmured, as she brushed a microbe of dandruff off his shoulder where her head lately rested.

"I don't know, I'm sure: doctors seems to think so."

"It's awful, ain't it?"

"Terrible."

"A great many die with it?"

"So I've heard."

"I read somewhere the otherday that married men seldom take it, whereas, single gentlemen are almost sure to."

"Is that so?" said Mr. Boothby.

"Yes, and it's almost certainly fatal."

"Horrible, ain't it? said Boothby with a shudder.

"I do hope you won't catch it, Mr. Boothby," she whispered, tears starting to her eyes.

He took the hint and popped the question.

How She Felt.

"And so you have received a divorce from that vagabond husband of yours, Mrs. Smith?"

"Yes, I am glad to say that I have."

"Didn't you feel quite overpowered when you heard the decision of the judge?"

"Not exactly. I felt sort of unmanned, so to speak."

He was Rather Deaf.

A young man, who had formed an attachment for a young lady, went to her father's house to ask his consent to their union. The old gentlemen, who was terribly deaf, was standing on the door-step as his daughter's lover approached. The front door commanded a view of a meadow in which a cow was feeding, and while Mr. C. was looking in that direction the youthful lover, whose heart was overflowing with emotion, commenced the task he came to perform.

"I am acquainted with your daughter," he said, in a loud tone.

"She is a fine beast," remarked the old gentleman, looking at the cow.

"Your daughter, screamed the young man. "I have the honor to be well acquainted with her."

"She is a noble animal," was the quiet response.

"Plague the old cow!" said the young man, in a whisper. "I wish she was out of sight"

"I was speaking about your amiable and accomplished daughter."

"She is very kind, indeed; never breaks down any fences; never kicks over the pail; never strays away like the other brutes I have."

"You don't understand me, sir! I was speaking of your daughter at boarding school."

"No, I never put a board on her fence; she never does any mischief at all."

"Your daughter!" shouted the young man, frantic with excitement.

"Did you say I ought to?"

"No, sir! I was speaking of your daughter, the young lady away from home."

"Oh, yes; I have plenty of room, but I think she is too old to keep much longer. To tell the truth I have made up my mind to shut her up in the stable and feed her on chop stuff for a few weeks."

"Great heavens!" remarked the young man to himself. "What shall I do? This deafness will be the death of me. I will try once more and if this effort fails I will resort to pencil and paper."

"I should like to say a word or two to you respecting your daughter."

"I shall let the butcher have her by and by—if he will give my price," said the old man with emphasis.

As a last resort the young man used his pencil and paper—showed his letters of introduction, handsomely endorsed by men whose opinion was good authority on the delicate question on the tapis. After a little cross-questioning and a little hesitation he gave his consent, and when the parties were married he declared it was the best haul he had made in all his life.—St. Louis Republican.

Balm for the Wakeful.

A fact not generally known is that fourteen plans have been patented to produce sleep and models of the invention may be seen in the department at Washington. Some of these patents are simple, others complicated. One is a sort of derrick run by clock work which hoists the patient gently into a sitting posture and lays him as gently down. This motion is provocative of sleep, and the tired but active brain sinks into slumber while the machine is still at work. Ten minutes or so after having been put in motion the machine stops and the patient is laid softly down for a nine-hour snooze. Sometimes the mechanism stops in the wrong place, and the patient is left sitting up asleep. This is the only drawback to the success of this patent. Another contrivance is a Connecticut invention consisting of a tin box with apertures for the nose and mouth. When breatbed into it makes soft, delicious music. The patient stops thinking to hear the mouth organ and he knows no more until he hears the little instrument sing a wake-up song in the morning. As usual this patent has a skeleton in the closet. It puts the patient asleep, but it keeps everybody else in the house awake. One of the oldest ideas is a pillow filled with hops and other herbs noted for their soporific qualities, but a pillow-case stuffed with chloroform would not put a man with the jumping toothache asleep, so that pillow has not come into general use. An heroic cure for insomnia which has not gained the public sympathy was the falling head-board, which was supposed to club the victim into insensibility. The inventor of this scheme is now at Bloomingdale, N. Y. Then there is the toe-jerker, which is supposed to take a man's mind off other topics; the clothes-pin for the nose, the soporific gum drop, and other not so well known devices.

Wouldn't Forget Him.

A benevolent gentleman, while waiting for a street car, was approached by a negro who asked him for a nickel. The gentleman only had a nickel, but there was something so appealing about the negro, that he gave him the nickel and decided to walk home.

"Thankee, sah! thankee. De Lawd ain't gwineter furget yer fur dis."

"That's all right."

"Yas, sah, yas."

"Just then the car came along and the negro hopped on with agility.

"Here," exclaimed the gentleman. "You are an old scoundrel."

"Yas, sah, yas, but de Lawd ain't gwine ter furget yer."—Arkansaw Traveler.

"There can be no grand men without grandmothers," says Kate Field. That's all right as far as it goes, Kate; but you fail to give the grandfather any show. Give the old man a chance.

Queer Origin of Words.

The word "pamphlet" is derived from the name of a Greek authoress, Pamphylia, who compiled a history of the world into 35 little books. "Punch and Judy" is a contraction of Pontius and Judas. It is a relic of an old "miracle play," in which the actors were Pontius Pilate and Judas Iscariot. "Bigot" is from Visigotha, in which the fierce and intolerant Arianism of the Visigoth conquerors of Spain is handed down to infamy. "Humbug" is from Hamburg, "a piece of Hamburg news," was in Germany a proverbial expression for false political news. "Gauze" derives its name from Gaza, where it was first made. "Tabby cat" is all unconscious that her name is derived from Atab, a famous street in Bagdad inhabited by the manufacturers of silken stuffs called ataby or taffety, the wavy makings of the watered silks resembling a pussy's coat. "Old Scratch," is the demon Skratti, who still survives in the superstitions of northern Europe. "Old Nick" is none other than Niker, the dangerous water demon of Scandinavian legend. The lemon takes its name from the city of Lima.

One Higher.

Two men, strange to each other, sat side by side in the Brush street depot the other day. One was a corpulent, pompous man, and the other under-sized and humble-looking. A third man approached, and without looking directly at either one inquired:

"Say, Major, will you tell me what time the Niagara Falls train leaves this side?"

Both men pulled out their watches and made answer in chorus, but as they did so the pompous man turned in his seat and said:

"I suppose he was addressing me, as he mentioned my title."

"Did you say Major?" asked the little man of the inquirer.

"I believe I did."

"Oh—ah! I beg a thousand pardons. I understood you to say Colonel, and supposed, of course, you meant me."

The big man lost fifteen pounds of flesh in the next two minutes, and it took twenty minutes hard walking under the freight sheds to cool him off.—Free Press.

Origin of the Fan.

The following account of the origin of the fan which we clip from an exchange may not be uninteresting to our lady readers. One evening when the beautiful Kau Si, daughter of a powerful Chinese mandarin, was assisting at the great feast of lanterns, she was so overcome by the heat that she was obliged to take off her mask. But to expose her face to the eyes of the profane and vulgar was a serious offense against the law, so holding the mask so closely as possible to her features she rapidly fluttered it to give herself air, and the rapidity of the movement still concealed her. The other ladies present witnessed this hardy but charming innovation, imitated it, and at once ten thousands hands were fluttering ten thousand masks. Thus the fan was evoked and took the place of the mask.

The Adventures of a Check.

During a snow storm last February a London firm put up for postage, among others, a letter to a Glasgow firm, containing a check for a sum little short of $5,000. The check not reaching its destination, in due course payment was stopped at the bank, and notwithstanding that every inquiry was made, nothing was heard of the letter at the time. Eventually, however, the check was brought to the firm who had drawn it, together with the letter, by a police inspector, who had found the letter adhering to a block of ice floating on the Thames off Deptford. The supposion is that the letter fell in the street, was carted off in the snow to the Thames, and then, after a week's immersion in the river, got affixed to a block of ice.

Musical Item.

A man who looked very much like a tramp was playing a fiddle in a Texas town where the law against tramps is strictly enforced. A policeman came up to him and said:—

"Have you got a license to give a concert in the open air?"

"No, I haven't got a license. I am only playing because it amuses the children.

"That's all right, you accompany me, if you please."

"Want me to accompany you, do you? Why certainly. What song do you sing best?" asked the tramp tuning his fiddle.

No Cause for Alarm.

Mrs. De Blank: "Oh! Henry, you must send for the doctor at once. I believe I am getting the dropsy. Now don't delay a moment."

Mr. De Blank: "Why, what put that idea into your head?"

"Dear me! will you never be satisfied that what I say is true? I got weighed to-day, and oh, it's awful! I weighed 500 pounds."

"Great St. George! Where did you get weighed?"

"Around at your coal yard."

"Calm yourself, my dear. Your weight is exactly 180 pounds."

A Cautious Man.

He was a mathematical cuss, and always engaged in making intricate calculations on paper. The marriage was to take place on Friday but he suggested to his prospective mother-in-law that it had better take place on Thursday.

"Why do you wish it changed?" she asked suspiciously.

"Well," said he," "I have been making a calculation, and I find that my silver wedding will come on Saturday evening, and that would never do, as that is the evening I have to go to the lodge."

"Then why should I register them?" "Because they are so cold."

Sound Advice.

Jim Webster was brought up before an Austin justice of the peace. It was the same old charge that used to bother him in Galveston. After the evidence was all in, the judge with a perplexed look, said:—

"But I do not comprehend, Webster, how it was possible for you to steal those chickens when they were roosting right under the owner's window, and there were two vicious dogs in the yard."

The Washington Elm.

What is known as the Washington Elm stands near the centre of Boston Common. It is so called because under its broad shadow Washington first drew his sword as Commander-in-Chief of the Continental army. On June 21, 1775, Washington left Philadelphia for the camp at Cambridge. He arrived there July 2 and established his headquarters at a house near the road running from Harvard College to Waltham. On the morning of July 3 at 9 o'clock the troops were all drawn up in order on the Common to receive the Commander-in-Chief. Washington walked from headquarters to the great tree, and, standing beneath it, drew his sword and formally took command of the Continental army.

MY FAITH.

I hold that he who loves his Lord,
With quiet trust;
Who daily does his Master's work
As servants must;
Who loves to treat in honest faith
His fellow man,
And builds upon the rock of Hope
His simple plan,
Is one among the Lord's elect—
In truth and deed—
Though he may wear no public badge
Of sect or creed.

And I believe that he who sees—
In field or fell—
The evidence which proves that God
Doeth all things well,
Whose soul the happy song of birds
With rapture thrills,
Who hears the voice of Nature's God
In rocks and rills,
Whose inmost heart responsive greets
The ocean's voice,
Whose instincts in the pictured skies
And earth rejoice,
Who looks on all with Faith enlarged
To grateful thought,
By every soul-inspiring scene
To reverence wrought,
Who speaks to weary toilers here
In accents kind,
And turns toward the grieving hearts
With pitying mind;
Who strives with evil, though it be
Its triumph hour,
Rebuking wrong though thrice entrenched
In wealth and power;
Whose prayers ascend on silent wing
At night and morn;
Within whose soul each day these faiths
Anew are born.
Though he be far from sects, nor act
As churchmen do,
Is yet a noble child of God—
A Christian true—
For he who stands in reverend truth
Before God's face
Becomes, in virtue of his trust,
A child of grace.

SCIENTIFIC MISCELLANY.

MAPPING THE UNITED STATES.—With the present organization of the United States Geological Survey, according to Mr. J. W. Powell, its map of the United States will be completed in about twenty-four years, about one-fifth of the country—exclusive of Alaska—having thus far been mapped. Where the topography and geology are simple, as in the prairies and great plains, the sheets of this map are made on a scale of 1—250,000, or about four miles to the inch; farther west, where both structure and topography are more complex, special districts are made to twice this scale, and important mining districts are drawn much larger; while in the east the more thinly settled sections are given a scale of 1-125,000, and the more densley populated portions one of 1-62,500, or about one mile to the inch. Upon this plan, the whole of the United States and Alaska will require not less than 2600 sheets, besides several hundred special maps.

AN INTERESTING BIRD.—A living species of four-footed bird inhabiting the island of Marajo in the Lower Amazons, was a short time ago described by Mr. E. M. Brigham. It is only during infancy that the remarkable feature of this bird is seen, the two fore-feet appearing early in the development of the embryo and continuing perfectly formed for several days after hatching, when they are gradually shed. The Zoological name of this curious creature is Opisthocoma cristata.

A Man Who Did Not Approve the Minor Details of Indian Customs.

Mr. Gladison Fowler has just returned from the Indian Territory. The account which he gives of his sojourn in that beautiful country throws much light on Indian institutions.

"Oh, it is a great undeveloped country," said he, in reply to a question asked by a friend, "but do you know that I can not approve of the minor details of some of their social customs? It's a fact, I don't. I visited old Lumpty Tum. He is one of the wealthiest men in the Territory. The old fellow treated me with marked courtesy. It is an Indian custom that a guest shall not eat with the family, but that his meals shall be served to him in his room, and that he shall be waited upon by the favorite daughter. Well, when my first meal was brought, I took a good look at the girl. She was beautiful, but her father's money made her face strikingly attractive. She spoke English pretty well, and was not so bashful as I had expected to find her. She became more and more communicative, and after awhile in view of the fact that I was out of employment, I decided to make to her a proposition of marriage. She told me how to proceed. I must take her by the hand, lead her to Lumpty Tum, and say: 'Will you give me this maiden?' I did so. Lumpty Tum reflected a moment and said:

"You don't want her.'

"The girl nudged me and I knew that this was another custom.

"'Yes, I do.'

"'All right.'

"Nothing more was said. The next day we were married. I rushed up to Lumpty Tum and shook hands with him, but when I called him father he frowned upon me.

"'How is this?' I asked.

"'How is what?'

"'You do not allow me to call you father.'

"'No.'

"'Why?'

"'Cause I ain't.'

"'Didn't I marry your daughter?'

"'No, married servant. Daughter away at school.'

"So you see," continued Mr. Gladison Fowler, "I can not approve the minor details of some of the Indian customs."—Arkansaw Traveler.

Bulwer Lytton's Bridge.

Where it Touches the Shores and the Great Columns in Midstream.

"What a beautiful bridge between old age and childhood is religion. How intuitively the child begins with prayer and worship on entering life, and bow intuitively, on quitting life, the old man turns back to prayer and worship, putting himself again side by side with the infant," remarks Sir E. Bulwer Lytton, in his "Strange Story."

Yes, but between its distant abutments the bridge of life has many high and awful arches through which the wild waters dash and roar in wrath and desolation. Prayer and worship alone do not sustain these. Nature's solid rock must lie unshaken beneath, and human art and skill must rear and solidify the structure overhead. God's will is best exemplified in the laws He has made for the creatures whom He has placed under their control. Neither the child's trustful "Our Father," nor the old man's "Forget me not in the midst of mine infirmities," will alter this by the weight of a single grain.

Science and art first—then faith and prayer—is the order of heaven itself. Divinity heals through its agents, and those agents are the discoveries of man; not in the vague announcements of prophets or seers. Is life a burden to you? Does time drag? Is your power to cope with life's problems and duties weakened? You are not well. Your blood is sluggish and tainted, perhaps; or some important organ is torpid or overworked. This fact may have taken the form of dyspepsia, rheumatism, gout, malaria, pains in the stomach, chronic headache, or any of a dozen other ills. PARKER'S TONIC will invigorate you, as fresh air invigorates those who have been shut up in damp, fetid cells. It is powerful, pure, delicious, scientific, safe—the keystone of the central arch of the bridge of life. 17 22 4t

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS.

WHAT IS IT?

A strictly vegetable preparation, composed of a choice and skillful combination of Nature's best remedies. The discoverer does not claim it a cure for all the ills, but boldly warrants it cures every form of disease arising from a torpid liver, impure blood, disordered kidneys, and where there is a broken down condition of the system. It is a prompt and permanent tonic, it never fails to restore the sufferer. Such is BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS. The Gladstone Cabinet Resigns.

LONDON, June 9.—4.30 p. m.—Mr. Gladstone has just announced to parliament the resignation of the cabinet. The defeat of the government has produced a general depression on the Stock Exchange. When Mr. Gladstone, a few minutes after 4 o'clock this afternoon, entered the house of commons, his appearance was that of a firm man, perfectly undisturbed. He at once proceeded to the speaker's desk and entered into conversation with Mr. Peel. During the conversation the premier was evidently in bright spirits, and he was loudly cheered by the radical members of the house. When he seated himself in his usual place, his very self-possession seemed to enthuse his admirers, and the chamber was fairly rent with cheer after cheer, and the applause became an ovation.

At last Mr. Gladstone arose in deference to the greeting. He said the cabinet on assembling to-day thought they were under obligations to submit a dutiful communication to the queen. [Cheers.] It would be premature on his part to enter into particulars concerning the nature of that communication just now. He would say, however, that, as on former occasions, a few days must elapse before the result of that communication could be arrived at so as to be made known to the house. During the interval, Mr. Gladstone concluded the house would follow its usual custom in refraining from the transaction of its ordinary business, and he would move that the house, on rising, do adjourn until Friday.

It is reported that the conservative leaders at a conference this evening decided to accept office. The following is a forecast of a portion of the new cabinet: Marquis of Salisbury, prime minister and secretary of state for foreign department; Sir Michael Hicks Beach, chancellor, exchequer and leader in the house of commons; Sir Stafford Northcote (who will go from the house of lords) president of council; Lord Randolph Churchill, secretary of state for India; Colonel Frederick A. Stanley, secretary of state for war. The new ministers will attempt no means calculated to give the liberals a chance to gain a victory. They will recast the budget in accordance with the votes of the house, and when the estimates are passed will dissolve parliament.

Passed Over the Vetoes.

HARRISBURG, June 9.—At the afternoon session of the house the message of the governor vetoing certain items of the general appropriation bill was read and after a brief discussion the vetoed items were taken up and voted upon seriatim and all were passed over the veto by votes ranging from yeas 147, nays 22, to yeas 157, nays 14. The house, by a vote of yeas 158, nays 10, also passed over the governor's veto the bill appropriating $27,000 to pay the employes and officers of the house and senate the last fifty-six days of the session of 1883.

Villages Engulfed.

LONDON, June 7.—The earthquake shocks at Serinagur and other points in the Vale of Cashmere continue at intervals, averaging three hours in length. Whole villages have been engulfed, and terrible subterranean noises are heard, driving the people frantic with fear. The horrors of approaching famine are added to the other results of the disaster, as many thousand bushels of grain in storage have been swallowed up in the chasms which are constantly opening.

An Asylum Burned.

WILLIAMSBURG, Va., June 8.—At 12 o'clock last night a fire broke out in the right wing of the centre building of the Eastern Lunatic Asylum here, and before it could be got under control everything was destroyed. The buildings burned comprise the original ones of the institution, and were erected over one hundred years ago. There were two hundred female patients in the burned buildings, but all of them were rescued except one, Miss Smith, of Spottsylvania county, who was burned to death. Another patient, Mrs. Jeffries, after being brought out the building, wandered away and was found this morning drowned in a creek near by. All the female patients were taken to William and Mary College, where they were temporarily cared for. The other wards contained three hundred male patients. These wards were quickly emptied and the unfortunates turned loose, but did not wander off, being generally tractable. When it was found that the fire was getting beyond control, aid was telegraphed for from Richmond, and a steamer reached here from that city at about 3 o'clock this morning, but the fire had then done its worst. The Richmond firemen, however, went to work and did good service. None of the male wards were burned, they being located in buildings partly disconnected from those destroyed, and a strong wind blowing from them. The total loss is estimated at from $120,000 to $140,000; insurance about $40,000. The fire is believed to have resulted from some trouble with the electric wires, as it was first discovered where the wires entere pthe right wing of the building.

Reported Murder of the Ameer.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 6.—The Novosti announces that it has been privately informed from the Caucasus that the ameer of Afghanistan (Abdurrahman) had been murdered by his suite. It is said that the murder took place in Persia, where the ameer was at the time traveling, and that Byoob Khan, the deposed ameer, will be his successor. The report causes much excitement.

LONDON, June 6.—The reported murder of the ameer of Afghanistan is doubted in official circles here, as the government had received no information up to a late hour this afternoon tending to confirm the rumor. Some believe that the report is a stock-jobbing canard.

Narrow Escape of Work People.

DANBURY, Conn., June 7.—The extensive hat factory of Beckerle & Co., was destroyed by fire at 4 p. m. yesterday. A gas machine exploded and in five minutes the three-story structure, covering nearly an acre, was all in flames. There were 450 employes at work in the building at the time and all escaped, many by jumping from the windows. A number of persons were badly burned, among them Mr. Beckerle. The flames spread to and destroyed eight dwellings owned by the firm. The total loss is about $200,000; insurance, $90,000.

Stealing an Entire House.

CHICAGO, June 5.—A large frame building, fifty by sixty feet, on the corner of Twentieth and Butterfield Streets, belonging to G. H. Norris, was vacated by a tenant on May 30. By 10 o'clock Monday night every vestige of the building had disappeared, it having been torn down and carted away. When the owner found it gone yesterday, he immediately swore out warrants for the arrest of several dozen families in whose yards the remains of the building were found. This is the first instance on record here where an entire house has been stolen.

The Stewart Cathedral Consecrated

GARDEN CITY, L. I., June 7.—This morning the last of the consecration services was held in the Cathedral of the Incarnation. There was a much larger attendance than upon any of the preceding days, the building being uncomfortably filled. Bishop Littlejohn, in his sermon, spoke of the ceremonies of the week gone by, referring in touching terms to the pious impulse of the donor of the Cathedral and other property, and the great advantages to accrue from the existence of the Cathedral. Communion services were held at 8 a. m. and afternoon services at 3.30.

Against Sunday Excursions.

SYRACUSE, June 5.—The Reformed Church Synod this morning elected Rev. Dr. Peter Vedder lecturer for 1887. Rev. James Bruce and President Gates made addresses on church work. The classis of Saratoga complained that on March 12 the Reformed Church Society in West Troy by a vote of 128 to 80 changed its denomination to that of the Presbyterian Church. Legal proceedings will be taken. Dr. W. H. Ford, of Brooklyn, introduced a resolution condemning the desecration of the Sabbath by excursions.

Killed by the Indians.

PRESIDIO, SAN FRANCISCO, June 5.—General Crook telegraphs the following direct from Fort Bayard: "From the best obtainable information the following number of citizens has been killed: Seven on the Blue River and around Alma, five near Silver City, two near Old Camp Vincent, and three near Grafton. There may have been others killed, but I can get no reliable information."

One Hundred Big Volumes.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—The Public Printer reports that part first, volume twelve, of the "Rebellion Record" is nearly completed and will be ready for delivery by the first of July. It is extremely doubtful whether this generation will see the completed full set of this remarkable work. The whole of it will make about one hundred pages each, in all probability overrunning even this estimate.

Brief Telegrams.

TRENTON, N. J., June 7.—This afternoon a man named Nicholas Cook and a boy named Philip Wase, while sailing, were drowned in the Delaware, near this city.

PLYMOUTH, Pa., June 5.—But one death from the fever has occurred within the last twenty-four hours, and no new cases have been reported. Several new cases are reported at Sugar Notch, about three miles from here.

WINNIPEG, June 7.—A dispatch from Fort Pitt says Capt. Stele with seventy mounted scouts and police had an engagement with the Big Bear Indians yesterday, driving them across Small Creek. Stele's loss was three wounded.

HALIFAX, June 5.—A double circle of brilliant lines around the sun was distinctly visible all this morning. It is regarded as a most peculiar and novel phenomenon, probably prognosticating severe storms. The weather has been rapidly clouding since noon.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—Ex-Governer Curtin had a consultation to day with Commissioner Black in connection with the appointment of a number of pension agents for the state of Pennsylvania. The governor was accompanied by several politicians of his state.

LONDON, June 7.—United States Senator Edmunds and Mr. Cyrus W. Field of New York arrived to-day on the Aurania. The object of Senator Edmunds's visit is to give evidence before the Committee on Privileges of the House of Lords regarding American law in a case involving the succession to the title and estates of the Earl of Lauderdale.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS

Important Meeting of the School Board.

The school board met in regular session on Tuesday evening, all being present.

Among the more important items of business we give the following:

A vote of thanks was extended to Dr. G. W. Atherton, President of State College, for his fine address during the commencement exercises of the High School.

On motion, President Fortney and Messrs. Moore and Harris were appointed a committee to procure new rooms for the High School, to ascertain the cost of a new building and to procure all necessary information and report at a special meeting to be held Friday evening, June 19.

At the special meeting on the 19th teachers will be elected to fill the schools the coming year and, on motion, it was determined to also levy the tax at that meeting.

The salaries of teachers in the stone building and in the colored school will be the same as last year.

Standing committees were appointed as follows: On Finance—W. B. Rankin, Jno. I. Olewine, John Hoffer; On Accounts—John Hoffer, J. P. Harris, W. B. Rankin; On Supplies—Jno. I. Olewine, John Heffer, Isaac Thomas; On Repairs—J. W. Moore, E. B. Pontius, Isaac Thomas; On Grounds—Isaac Thomas, J. W. Moore, William Long.

Principal D. M. Lieb read his report and also a special report from Prof. D. O. Etters, of the High School. In Principal Lieb's report it was stated that the attendance of pupils during the year was 572, daily average attendance 455, and daily average attendance, exclusive of the last month, 486. The decrease in the last month of school is caused by pupils leaving to begin work. It also stated that very explicit reports of pupils' standing had been sent regularly to parents; that pupils had been very orderly and no smoking nor profanity had been indulged in while on the school grounds. The report favored the adoption of a supplementary second and third readers, as the third reader commencing with Miss Strickland's "A" class is used through Miss McCaffery's, Miss Rankin's and Miss Humes' grades, and the second reader is used in three grades—Miss Powers', Miss McGinley's and Miss Strickland's. For similar reasons, the report favored the adoption of an additional speller, and the introduction of spelling blanks in the higher, intermediate and grammar schools.

The report of the principal of the High School advocates the securing of new rooms, as the rooms now used are not adapted to the purpose. It recommended a course of scientific lectures, the purchase of apparatus to be used in teaching chemistry and natural philosophy, and a better division of work between the Principal and his assistant.

—Mrs. Livingstone, of Spring street, possesses a beautiful specimen of that queen among flowers—the cactus. The beauty of this particular plant is diminishing, but it has long been an object of admiration to people who passed that way. It contained nine very large blossoms at one time, and we have heard connoisseurs in such affairs say that it was the handsomest they ever saw.

—The score of the base ball game between the Harrisburg and Lock Haven nines in the latter city Monday was 3 to 3.

This is the Time—

When the merchant says everything is dull and the newspaper reporter finds everything exceedingly lively; because—

There is no school nor school books to keep the urchins quiet and they go off to the nearest pond for a swim and get drowned.

The young man sits in the shade with his girl and before one can say 'Jack Robinson" he becomes very lackadaisical and they commit matrimony.

The festival rages and people gorge themselves with ice cream for the benefit of a noble cause. There, for instance, are the young ladies of the Reformed church. They haven't called to give us any further information about it this week, but we suppose that they will have a princely array of good things at their festival in Humes building next Friday and Saturday evenings. We call on all the good and gallant people of the town to brace themselves up to do justice to this occasion.

Then this is the time when the mountains and hills look so beautiful that one cannot imagine anything more lovely.

When everybody except the editor begins to prepare for a summer vacation. The only vacation he has is the vacant place in his pocket where the money ought to be.

When strawberries, peas, beans, rhubarb, lettuce and onions fill the markets. The hungry man looks at them, feels in his moneyless pocket and wanders off to dig some bitter dandelion greens for dinner.

When John Wagner begins to tell big 'snaik' stories;

And Judge Furst catches the biggest fish in the creek;

And a Democrat don't get the postoffice;

And people begin to think that there might be a few more electric lights distributed through the town, as it is pretty dark in some portions—for instance, East Curtin street;

And the Acmes talk about taking revenge on the college "Preps," and then start out to play the New Yorks.

When the Bellefonte Orchestra practices delightfully in the Y. M. C. A. rooms every Wednesday evening and people in the vicinity get the benefit of it.

When the young man in white pants goes to a picnic and sits down on a strawberry tart, and his girl gets stung by a wasp and swooms in his lap.

Indeed, this is a lovely time; let us enjoy it.

—Miss Newson, who fell down stairs at the hotel kept by her brother at Howard, Sunday, did not injure herself so much as was feared. It appears that during the heavy hailstorm she was in a part of the house from which three separate exits lead in as many different directions—one upstairs, one down and the third into an entry. She intended to go upstairs, but becoming confused she opened the door leading into the cellar. She raised her foot as if to mount the first step and of course fell with great force to the foot of the cellar stairs. One of the guests ran and carried her up the stairs. She is a delicate young lady and it was at first thought that she was dead but she has recovered and bears only a few bruises in consequence o her fall.

SPECIAL MENTION.

Mr. Moore Still Agent for the Howe Sewing Machine.

Some persons—probably because they are jealous of the success of Mr. A. C. Moore as agent of the Howe Sewing Machine—have been circulating the report that he has given up the agency. This is entirely false. He has worked for this machine for sixteen years and intends to continue so long as it is the best machine in the market.

Mr. Moore has a business place in Milesburg and also in this place in connection with Mrs. Dare's millinery store. He is very anxious that everybody shall understand the merits of the new light-running, high-arm "G" sewing machine. It is the perfection of mechanism for hemming, felling, cording, braiding, binding, trimming, quilting, tucking, ruffling, gathering, embroidering, making button holes, or any other work that can be done. All machines guaranteed.

Call at his business place in Mrs. N. K. Dan's store on Allegheny street, and see this wonderful machine.

—Sechler & Co., grocers, insert a new advertisement in this issue. Their store is well stocked with the freshest and best groceries and is one of the best places in the county to buy. Persons can come from a long distance and save money by purchasing of Sechler & Co. Do not forget the place—66 and 68, Bush House Block.

—The barber shop at the nail works has been opened up and is a flourishing institution.

A Saw Mill Burned.

VAIL, June 5, 1885.

D. K. Ramey & Co's saw mill at Ramey was destroyed by fire last night at 8 o'clock. The lumber was all saved. Had it not been for the timely fall of rain the entire town would have been destroyed. The fire is supposed to have been the work of an incendiary. I have not heard the extent of the loss. DUPLEX.

—S. & A. Loeb, who have always ranked among the most enterprising business men and most generous advertisers in Bellefonte, appear to-day with one of their characteristic announcements. Such an offer has perhaps never before been made in this town and many people will take advantage of it knowing that it is the opportunity of a life time. Read their advertisement carefully.

—On Monday, June 22, the graduating class in the Technical Course of Lafayette College will read their theses in Pardee Hall. Bond V. Sommerville, of this place, will read a "Review of the Wrought Iron, Triangular Truss Bridge on the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad at Stewartsville, N. J."

—Mr. Theodore Deschner, of the Great Central Gun Works, has already commenced to celebrate his Fourth of July. He has a big stock of fire works which he is selling cheaper than ever before. Call at his establishment on Water street, north of High.

Pine Grove Mills Budget.

PINE GROVE MILLS, June 8.

Our neighborhood was visited by a hail storm yesterday. Hail fell quite thick in some places, but it was not large enough to do any serious damage.

Rev. Mr. Leidy, Presiding Elder of the M. E. church, preached in town last evening. The gentleman is an able and effective speaker.

Mr. W. H. Mokle, of Lemont, who has been on the invalid corps for a year or more, was in town on Friday and Saturday. He was accompanied by his wife.

The friends of Rev. W. C. Kuhn's family were very sorry to learn of the death of their son Robbie, which occurred several weeks ago. He has been an invalid for several years, and was loved by all who knew him, and he will no doubt be missed very much by the family and all who were acquainted with him.

Decoration day passed off quietly in this locality. Although the earlier part of the day was very unpleasant yet the G. A. R. Post did its whole duty and carried out its entire programme by decorating all the soldier's graves within its limits. The exercises were opened in the cemetery at Meek's Church, where quite a large number of brave heroes lie buried. The ceremonies were conducted with all the solemnity and grandeur of that worthy order, the G. A. R. After short addresses by T. C. Houtz and Rev. Felton and some excellent music by a select chior trained for the occasion by Miss Birdie Musser, the procession returned to Pine Grove cemetery. Here the exercises were much the same as before. Revs. Elliot and Felton each delivered a very excellent address. In addition to the good music of the singers of the occasion, some very fine music was furnished by the Pine Grove cornet band. The spirit and patriotism of the G. A. R. is worthy our highest respect and the day will be a gloomy one when we fail to do due honor to the heroes who have bought and defended our civil and religious freedom.

In the evening of Memorial day the ladies of the W. C. T. U. held an ice cream festival which proved quite successful and netted a neat little sum to be added to the funds of that organization. DIXIE.

—The officers of the National Guard who went to Curwensville on Tuesday succeeded in organizing a very fine company. P. J. Wolesiagle was elected captain. He was at one time major of the Fifth regiment. It will be known as Company A.

HEALTH—STRENGTH—LONG LIFE

SECURED BY THE USE OF

Crosby's Vitalized Phos-phites;

Nature's own BRAIN AND NERVE FOOD.

This preparation is one of the greatest triumphs of modern chemical science. It is at the same time a remedial agent, and a natural food. It restores exhausted and wasted functions of the brain and nerves, and its daily use, while in health will prevent such exhaustion and waste. This is the only preparation of Phosphorous that has received the approbation of the entire medical profession in this country and in Europe,

Over a MILLION PACKAGES have been prescribed by Physicians in the United States.

SETIHP-SOH PHOS-PHITES

CROSBY'S Vitalized Phosphites

Is a phospheid or nerve-giving principle extracted from the ox brain and and wheat germ! It does not contain any of the animal substance of the brain, but the phosphoric principles dissolved in boiling alcohol and filtered from the brain substance. It is passed through felt filters, carefully dried and mixed with a little oven-dried flour from the germ of the wheat. Ephraim Cutter, A. M., M. D., in his microscopic analysis, testifies that it contains none of the substance of the ox brain; the active phosphites only are present.

By a careful and elaborate chemical analysis made by Prof. Percy, it was proved to be composed of the vital and nerve-giving principles of animal and vegetable life. The brains of animals and of fish contain an oily, nitrogenous hypo-phosphite, which, when separated from the fleshy part of the brain, is found to be a nerve-sustaining principle of animal life. It is entirely different in its effects from any compound made by chemists in the laboratory; the VITALIZED PHOS-PHITE contains in the highest degree this life-sustaining power; it requires no preparation or change in the stomach, but is in condition to be immediately assimilated into the blood, and ready for appropriation by the brain and nerves; it is essentially a special Brain and Nerve Food. Nature, not art, has prepared it for immediate assimilation.

In many forms of disease the digestion is so imperfect that chemical compounds, or even food, is not digested well enough to be assimilated and changed into blood. This VITALIZED PHOS-PHITE needs no digestion, it is assimilated at once, because it is in the exact condition found in all nervous structure, and is deposited in the nerve structure in the same condition as it was taken from it.

WHY HAVE PHYSICIANS PRESCRIBED OVER HALF A MILLION PACKAGES OF VITALIZED PHOS-PHITES

And found this Brain and Nerve Food indispensible in the treatment of all diseases of debility, and in all mental or nervous disorders?

Because it is not a secret remedy; they know what they are prescribing; the formula is on every package. Because it is one of those perfect preparations that seldom disappoint them.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Feb. 16, 1882.

I have prescribed your VITALIZED PHOS-PHITES extensively for the past seven years. I have found it invaluable in the treatment of debility, in diseases of the nervous system, and as a Tonic where the vital forces were at a low ebb. E. W. FINCH, M. D.

LANDON B. EDWARDS, M. D., Editor of the Virginia Medical Monthly, says: "I have prescribed VITALIZED PHOS-PHITES in several instances, and have also induced friends to use it. Our successes will make us prescribe it frequently."

AM. METALINE CO., 204 Greene St., N. Y.

Some three years ago my friend DR. STEARNS, Superintendent of the Insane Asylum in Hartford, told me how highly he prized VITALIZED PHOS-PHITES, and advised me to use the remedy with my many friends suffering with overwork of the brain. Knowing that I was one of the "overworked," I made the first trial on myself. The change in my health within two months after taking it was so satisfactory that I continue its use from time to time whenever I need it. I have not had a severe headache since I began its use; it was my great trouble before. I have prescribed it for very many of my friends—young, middle-aged and old—and in every case with benefit. You have given me a Brain Food in the only condition in which it can be constantly taken without danger. Many medical men whom I have induced to use it on themselves now use it regularly in their practice. S. GWYNN, M. D.

GARRETTSVILLE, Ohio, June 25, 1882.

F. CROSBY Co.,

Gentlemen: Several years ago when suffering from congestion of the vessels at the base of the brain, resulting in terrible mental depression, Dr. Leonard Sanford, of the Yale Medical College, prescribed for me the VITALIZED PHOS-PHITES. The effect was excellent, beyond all expectation; in two weeks I was a new man. Since my recovery I have recommended it to a number of my professional and other friends suffering from overwork, brain exhaustion, sleeplessness, spinal and nervous troubles and kindred complaints, and in many of these instances I have seen its good results. I have intended for some time to write to you in acknowledgement of the good effects, but I suppose you are overcrowded with letters of this sort.

R. A. TORREY, M. D.

TALLADEGA, Ala.,

F. CROSBY Co.: I am wonderfully pleased with the effects of your VITALIZED PHOS-PHITES. It is the best remedy I have ever used for Nervous Debility. For the enclosed money, please send me more by this day's mail. PAUL GIBT, M. D.

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio,

F. CROSBY: I have prescribed over 700 bottles of your VITALIZED PHOS-PHITE, and know it to be of the greatest value in restoring lost energy, relieving debility, nervousness, and preventing consumption.

Lightning Type Setting.

NEW YORK, June 4.—The best record for fast type setting was broken to-day in the match between Ira Somers, formerly of the Philadelphia Press, but now of the World of this city, and James McCann, of the Herald. The former set 6032 ems of solid minion in three hours, and the latter 6342, thus beating his opponent by 310 ems and winning the $5000 stakes and the championship of America. McCann set 254 lines of type and Somers 241 without correcting. The latter's proof was much more perfect than McCann's and he gained two lines on the latter in making corrections. The winner was thus but eleven lines ahead at the close.

The score is the most remarkable ever made in type-setting contests. Arensberg set 5500 in the same time five years ago and his record was not equalled till to-day. Somers' inexperience in such contests told against him. McCann is about 30 years of age and has participated in several matches, while his opponent is but 22 years old and never entered a race before. He was nervous at the outset to-day and took sixteen minutes to set the first stickfull, while his last one was set in thirteen minutes, the fastest time ever made. Often during the three hours the men completed their stickfulls simultaneously. It is the general opinion among the hundreds of printers who watched the contest that Somers can beat McCann, and another match is being arranged.

Rector Morgan's Marriage.

CLEVELAND, June 3.—Dr. Y. Peyton Morgan, rector of Trinity Church, formerly of Brooklyn, N. Y., was married this morning at Trinity. The English fashion of a morning wedding, with bride and bridesmaids wearing bonnets and the procession led by a surpliced choir of boys, was followed, the second of the kind in Cleveland. The ceremony was performed by Bishop Bedell assisted by Dr. Balles, rector emeritus of Trinity. The bride was Mary H., daughter of Dr. Elisha Sterling. After the wedding the party adjourned for the wedding breakfast to Dr. Sterling's residence, 874 Wilson avenue, and at 3 o'clock the pastor and his bride entered a carriage to be driven to the depot. The friends were throwing rice and the traditional old shoe after them when the team took fright and ran away. The pin attaching the whiffle-trees to the vehicle dropped out, and the team, liberated from it, left standing in the street with the frightened occupants unharmed. The horses came in collision with another carriage, and created quite a panic among the large crowd on the street. No one was seriously hurt, but the superstitious looked upon it as a bad omen. The young couple continued their journey to the depot a few yards away on foot.

No Great Change.

PITTSBURG, June 5.—There is no change in the iron strike situation to-day. Workmen are preparing for their annual reunion at Beaver, Pa., to-morrow and the manufacturers are quietly waiting for something to turn up. No more signatures have been affixed to the scale and the report that the Chartier's iron and steel company had signed the scale is denied. It has just been learned that a secret conference of manufacturers was held here yesterday with the object of ascertaining how many of the workmen are willing to cut loose from the sheet mill men and return to work at scale wages. Several manufacturers reported that their men had signified their willingness to join a movement of this kind. If enough men can be secured to start the mills in other departments the sheet mill will be allowed to remain idle. No definite conclusion was reached yesterday.

General Grant's Trip.

NEW YORK, June 5.—If the present favorable conditions are maintained General Grant will travel to Mt. McGregor on Tuesday, June 23. President Rutter, of the New York Central and Hudson River railroad, has placed his special car at General Grant's disposal for the use of the general and his family on the trip. The car will be attached to a morning express train from the Grand Central depot, and will be run to Saratoga where a change will be necessary because of the road to Mt. Gregory being a narrow gauge road. The general will be attended by his family and Dr. Douglass.

The Situation at Plymouth.

WILKESBARRE, June 5.—Dr. Childs, representing the Philadelphia relief committee, visited Plymouth this afternoon and inspected the hospital. He also examined into the system of distributing relief and visited a number of houses in which the fever exists. He expressed himself as greatly pleased with the methods adopted by the relief committee at Plymouth and with the management at the hospital. There were two deaths this afternoon, one that of a woman who leaves a husband and six children, all of whom are dangerously ill with the disease.

Secretary Bayard Speaks.

COLUMBIA, Mo., June 4.—Secretary of State Bayard and Senator Vest arrived here this morning. After the commencement exercises at the State University the marble tablet presented by the heirs of Thomas Jefferson to the institution was unveiled. Senator Vest made an address and was followed by the Secretary of State in an elaborate address upon the life and character of Jefferson.

A Narrow Escape.

PITTSBURG, June 3.—As a passenger train on the Butler branch of the West Penn road was running along the hillside, near Sarver station, the hearts of those on the train almost stopped beating with horror as they saw an immense mass of earth, rock, slate and trees begin to move, slowly at first, and then more and more rapidly, until it was rushing along, carrying everything before it. The engineer of the locomotive first saw the mass begin to move, and saw also that further advance by the train meant its utter destruction. He put on the air brakes instantly and brought the train to a stop so suddenly that two cars just back of the engine were almost telescoped, and several of the passengers were thrown from their seats. A perfect panic ensued, ladies shrieking and men and women making a mad rush for the doors under the impression that the slide was upon them.

While all this was transpiring, the mass of earth kept on its way, and just as the train stopped, the immense weight was precipitated with a crash upon the track. So close was it that the front part of the locomotive was buried, the pilot, headlight and other portions of the engine being broken off. The passengers were taken out as soon as possible, when it was found that all had escaped without anything more serious than a few bruises. The gentleman who told the story said the fright was as severe as if the coaches had really been caught by the slide. Although the affair was over in a few minutes, the horror of a whole life time seemed to be condensed in the short space.

In a Mine.

LONDON, June 3.—A dispatch received here this afternoon from Durham says that fire broke out in the Philadelphia colliery situated near that city, at noon to-day. Three hundred miners are in the pit, and all attempts so far to subdue the flames or render assistance to the imprisoned men have failed. Great excitement exists, and it is feared that the majority of the entombed miners will perish. A large force of men is at work at the colliery trying to rescue them.

8 P. M.—A Durham dispatch just received states that the colliery on fire is the property of the Earl of Durham, and is known as the "Margaret" pit. It is now feared that all the men and boys within the pit will be lost. Their number is placed at 350. The excitement in the neighborhood of the burning colliery increases momentarily. The relatives of the imperiled miners crowd around the mouth of the pit, weeping and wailing in a most heartrending manner. The origin of the fire is unknown. It is not believed an explosion occurred, as none was heard. The flames were discovered at noon, and in a very short time the vicinity was black with colliers, their wives and children. Usually the mines have two shafts, but the fire has evidently cut off escape by both. The wives of the imprisoned miners are weeping and calling on God to save the lives of the loved ones below.

The scene of the explosion is in the midst of a thickly settled mining district in the Newcastle coal regions. The Earl of Durham operates a number of collieries. The mine was working with a full complement of men and the fire occurred at a time when all were busily engaged.

Thrilling Event in Chicago.

CHICAGO, June 3.—During the storm last night, Henry Carmody, bridge tender at the Halstead street bridge, was the hero of a performance that probably saved the lives of a number of people. In the midst of the blinding wind and rain he had closed the bridge, through which a vessel had passed and stepped into his shanty. A street car bound north dashed upon the bridge, and as it neared the center of the structure Carmody glanced out of the window and was horrified to see the bridge slowly swinging open. The driver had his head ducked down to ward off the force of the storm, and was apparently unaware of the fearful consequences of his neglect and the danger ahead. Carmody took in the situation at a glance, dashed out of the bridge house and ran at top of his speed across the bridge toward the car. Reaching the advancing team he grabbed the horses by the bits and sang out to the driver to put on the brake. The car was stopped about ten feet from the end of the rails and over the muddy waters of the river. The driver, in haste to get across, allowed the team to travel at a rapid gait. A horrible catastrophe and loss of life was only prevented by Carmody's nerve and prompt action.

Counterfeit Silver Dollars.

OIL CITY, June 2.—For some time counterfeit silver dollars, impossible to detect from the genuine, have been circulated in this section of the State. Detectives have been at work searching for a clue, but in vain until last night, when a man about 27 years of age attempted to pass a counterfeit dollar at North Clarendon. He was arrested, and $19 in counterfeit was found upon him. He confessed that he belonged to a gang who had been working the eastern part of the State, and said he had passed $200 in Dubois without exciting suspicion. He told where the moulds were, and where the gang had $15,000 stored away. The authorities took him to Pittsburgh to-day.

Grant Will Not Drive Out Again.

NEW YORK, June 3.—Dr. Douglass remained all night at General Grant's house. He was called once during the night to attend the general who, while he slept nearly the usual time, passed a restless night. He was feeling not exceedingly bright when he awoke but improved as the day progressed. "I don't believe father will drive any more," said Colonel Grant this morning, "his experience lately while driving has not been good, and I think we will not go in the park any more."

The State Legislature.

HARRISBURG, Pa., June 4.—The afternoon session of the senate was occupied in the second reading of the numerous house bills. In the house a number of appropriation bills passed finally. The senate bill appropriating $32,000 for a scientific agricultural experimental station was defeated. The general revenue bill was considered with the intention of passing it immediately, but an error was discovered and the bill had to be laid over for reprinting. Brown's high license bill was next considered and lost—yeas 98, nays 70.

A message from the governor was received vetoing the bill increasing the pension of Jacob Hurst. The house refused to pass the bill over the veto.

In the senate this evening a number of appropriation bills were read the second time.

In the house to-night a number of senate bills passed finally, among them the following: Proposing a constitutional amendment providing that counties containing 60,000 inhabitants shall constitute separate judicial districts; providing that twenty days shall constitute a school month.

A Flood in Kansas.

ATCHISON, Kas., June 4.—A terrific storm of wind and rain swept over this city yesterday, destroying public and private property to the extent of about $60,000. All the creeks overflowed their banks, and culverts, bridges and crossings were swept away or seriously damaged. The gutters and sewers could not carry off the water, and the streets on the lower levels became rivers. Cellars were flooded, mills stopped and business greatly interrupted. The mayor and city engineer, after a careful inspection of public property, say the damage will reach $80,000 on city works alone, while almost every business man complains of more or less damage by water. The rain came down in a perfect deluge, and the thunder and lightning were much worse than ever before known in this vicinity.

Ready to Adjourn.

HARRISBURG, June 3.—The opinion was generally expressed to-day that all necessary legislation can readily be disposed of in time for final adjournment next week. Quite a number of appropriations of State institutions, which only lately passed the House, remain to be acted on, but aside from these the only measures of comparative importance awaiting action are the apportionment, county salary and mercantile tax bills, the high license supplement for boroughs, and marriage license act. Some eighty-five additional measures appear on the calendar, but these are generally of a local character and not much interest is evinced in the passage of any of them.

The Buzzard Settles Down.

LANCASTER, Pa., June 4.—Abe Buzzard, the noted outlaw, walked into the Lancaster county prison about midnight and surrendered himself to the authorities. He was accompanied by his brothers, Mart and John. Before giving himself up, he extracted a promise from his brothers and Prison Keeper Burkholder, that they would not claim the $1,000 offered for his capture. Buzzard surrendered at the instigation of prominent citizens of the eastern end of the county, who will use their efforts to secure a commutation of the nine years of his sentence, which it is generally agreed he unjustly received.

A Steamer Collides With a Whale.

PROVIDENCE, June 2.—Capt. Nathaniel C. Church of the steamer George W. Humphrey, a Manhaden fisher, which supplies the factories at Tiverton, reported, on his arrival today, that on Monday evening, while off Fire Island, the steamer was running about ten miles an hour, with a load of 2,000 barrels of fish, when she struck a whale. The shock was so great that the engineer and fireman were knocked down. Executive Officer Littlefield says that the whale appeared to him, after the collision, to be nearly cut through.

A Hotel Burned.

TROY, N. Y., June 2.—Early this morning the inmates of the Hotel Interlaken, at Saratoga Lake, were aroused by the cry of fire, and rushed from their rooms in their night clothes. The halls were filled with smoke, but all escaped. Before the firemen reached the scene the entire structure was in flames. The building and contents were totally destroyed. Loss, $20,000. The house was on the west side of the road, and was formerly Frank Leslie's barn. Mr. Truax converted it into a hotel two years ago.

Naval Academy Graduates.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 4.—The six men who graduated from the naval academy with the highest honors are as follows: David W. Taylor, Virginia; William McKay, Pennsylvania; John G. Tawnessy, Delaware; Albert C. Diffenbach, Pennsylvania; Theodore O. Fenton, Pennsylvania; Volney O. Chase, Louisiana. Among those who graduated without distinction were the following Pennsylvanians: Harrison A. Bispham, David S. Nes, James E. Shindel, Charles C. Poe.

Poisoned with Honey.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., June 3.—The families of George and J. E. Buchanan, living near Amity, Clark county, have been poisoned from eating poisonous honey. The bees gathered the nectar from the flower of a plant known as the cow poison, or the huckleberry. All ten members of the families are prostrated from the effects of the poison, and two of the children are in a dangerous condition.

An Ohio District Fallen.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—The president to-day appointed John H. Farley to be collector of internal revenue for the First district of Ohio; and Thos. C. Bronton to be collector of internal revenue for the Eighth district of Kentucky.

Beecher's Son Given an Office.

WASHINGTON, June 4.—The President to-day made the following appointments:

Herbert Foote Beecher, Collector of Customs for the district of Puget Sound, in the State of Oregon and Territory of Washington.

Archibald Stillwell, Collector of Internal Revenue for the district of Nevada.

Baker P. Lee, Collector of Customs for the district of Yorktown, Va.

Herbert Foote Beecher, appointed Collector of Customs for the district of Puget Sound, is a son of Henry Ward Beecher.

Ward Pleads not Guilty.

NEW YORK, June 4.—Ferdinand Ward, who has been indicted by the grand jury for larceny in the first degree in stealing $1,500,000 worth of bonds and securities from the Marine National Bank just prior to its failure, was brought down to-day from Ludlow Street Jail on the writ of habeas corpus granted by the Court yesterday and arraigned in the Court of Oyer and Terminer. He pleaded not guilty and his case was postponed until the 15th instant. Ward, after the date was fixed for his trial, was remanded to the custody of the Sheriff and taken back to jail.

Competition in the Clearfield Region.

PHILIPSBURG, June 3.—The Beach Creek, Clearfield and Southwestern Railroad has put down a crossing over the Tyrone and Clearfield branch of the Pennsylvania Railroad here. The new road is now being pushed into the town, and the branch roads will be built to the mines that now depend on the Pennsylvania for the transportation of coal. The coal operators are jubilant over the prospect of cheaper rates and increased facilities on account of competition.

A Rushing Torrent.

DENVER, June 4.—At noon yesterday Beaver Park reservoir in South St. Vrain canon, bursted, causing great damage in the surrounding country. A torrent, estimated to be 120 feet high, rushed down the canon, carrying away bridges, houses, barns, and everything which obstructed its path and flooding the adjacent country. So far as learned no lives are lost, but the damage to crops and meadows along the lowlands is very great. The river is an immense affair, covering many acres.

The Earthquake in India.

LONDON, June 3.—Additional particulars of the casualities caused by the earthquake last Sunday at Serinagur, India, have been received. Forty natives were killed, and eighty injured, many of them fatally, and fifty soldiers were seriously hurt. The palace of the British resident was reduced to ruins.

Brief Telegrams.

RICHMOND, Va., June 5.—During a severe wind storm to-day a number of houses were unroofed and otherwise damaged. W. J. Pertor, his son aged 9, and an old man named Harlan were buried in the ruins of a two-story cooper shop and were seriously, perhaps fatally, injured.

BALTIMORE, Md., June 5.—A severe wind storm visited this city to-day unroofing many houses and destroying a number of trees in the parks. A man named Christian Burenfeind, of Hilandtown, was struck by flying scantling and killed. The loss will probably reach $20,000.

HARRISBURG, June 5.—At the afternoon session of the House a number of bills passed finally, among them the following: Making the separate estate of married women liable for debts contracted by her; to prevent the employment of female labor in and about coal mines.

MEETING HIS MATCH.—Rev. Dr. Ritchie, of Edinburgh, though a very clever man once met his match. When examining a student as to the classes he attended, he said:—

"I understand you attended the class for mathematics?"

"Yes."

How many sides has a circle?"

"Two," said the student.

"Indeed! What are they?"

What a laugh in the court, the student's answer produced when he promptly said,—

"An inside and an outside!"

The doctor next inquired,—

"And you attend the moral philosophy class also?"

"Yes."

"Well, you doubtless heard lectures on various subjects. Did you ever hear one on cause and effect?"

"Yes."

"Does an effect ever go before a cause?"

"Yes."

"Give me an instance."

"A barrow wheeled by a man."

The doctor hastily sat down and proposed no more questions.

HIS PRETTY NAME.—Jim Webster was recently blessed with a son. His wife determined that the son and heir should have a high-sounding name, and selected a very beautiful one. When the child was presented to the clergyman for baptism the latter said:

"Name the infant."

Jim scratched his head for a while, and finally said:

"Squash."

"Dat's no proper name for a christian child."

"Squflower, den."

Once more the clergyman shook his head incredulously. Jim Webster leaned over and whispered to his wife to give the right name.

"Hyacinth," she replied.

"Well, I knowed it was some kinder garden truck."

A subscriber sends us by mail the following "Answer." He has probably shipped the conundrum by express. "Answer:" One is a mine of potter's clay and the other is pot of miner's clay.

The Preventive of a Terrible Disease.

No disorders, excepting the most deadly forms of lung disease, involve such a tremendous destruction of organic tissue as those which fasten upon the kidneys. Such maladies, when they become chronic—and none are so liable to assume that phase—completely wreck the system. To prevent this terrible disease, recourse should be had upon the first manifestation of trouble, to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which experience has proven to be highly effective as a means of imparting tone and regularity to the organs of urinition, as well as to the liver stomach and bowels. Another beneficial result of this medicine, naturally consequent upon its diuretic action, is the elimination from the blood of impurities which beget rheumatism, neuralgia, gout, dropsy, and other maladies. By increasing the activity of the kidneys, it augments the depurative efficiency of these organs, which are most important outlets for the escape of such impurities.

Aristocratic.

"Look here," said one Galveston gentleman to another, "those De Smiths that have moved into my neighborhood must be one of the toniest families in the State."

"What makes you think so?"

"Well, about fifty people called on them one day last week."

"Pshaw! that was on the first of the month; they get everything on credit."

VITALIZED PHOSPHITES aid most wonderfully in the bodily and mental growth of infants and children. For perfect growth there must be a large amount of phosphites supplied to the brain; if there is an insufficiency, the nerves become hungry, and oftentimes starved; the nights are restless, and consequently the days are fretful.

The ill effects of the brain starvation of little children do not end with childhood, but feebleness is continued through life.

VITALIZED PHOSPHITES is indispensible to all children who would learn easily and retain what they learn. Every thought carries away a moiety of the vital energy of the brain, and if it is not resupplied there is brain hunger. Every child who is studying should take the VITALIZED PHOSPHITES daily during the study months; even with those who are making no special effort, a daily dose as an occasional nutriment will give an assured means of keeping up both growth and vigor. Remember, it is not a medicine, it is a special FOOD to brain and nerves.

Taking the Chances.

"I w-want two g-grains of q-quinine an' four o'ounces of w-whisky," shivered a man with malaria to the drug clerk, "an' I'll it take n-now."

"Isn't that rather a small dose?" suggested the clerk; "you seem to have got it bad."

"I d-don't know but w-what it is. M-make it e-eight ounces of w-whisky, an' I'll run the risk."

Opening the Fountains.

In numberless bulbs beneath the skin is secreted the liquid substance which gives the hair its texture, color and gloss. When this secretion stops, the hair begins at once to become dry, lustreless, brittle and gray. Is that the condition of your hair? If so, apply Parker's Hair Balsam at once. It will restore the color, gloss and life by renewing the action of nature. The Balsam is not an oil, not a dye, but an elegant toilet article, highly appreciated because of its cleanliness.

The Sound of Sunset.

On the arrival of an emigrant ship at New York, some years ago, when a ship of war lay off the battery, an Irishman, hearing the gun fired at sunset, inquired of one of the sailors what that was.

"What's that? Why, that's sunset!" was the contemptuous reply.

"Sunset!" exclaimed Patrick, with distended eyes; "sunset! Holy Moses! and does the sun go down in this country with such a bang as that?"

VINEYARDS SAVED BY EARTHQUAKES.—That earthquakes exert a destructive influence on the phylloxera insect of the grape is the opinion of S. Villalongue, who has told the Paris Academy of Science of a vineyard near Malaga which had apparently been destroyed by the parasite but which vigorously burst into leaf after the recent earthquakes in southern Spain.

Doctors and Churches.

Hundreds of doctors who have visited Speer's vineyards during the wine making season say his wines have proved to be pure, unadulterated, of fine flavor and tonic properties and unsurpassed for their restorative powers; they prescribe them as very superior wines. The churches in New York and Brooklyn use the Port for their communion. Sold by druggists.

A Massachusetts ship captain recently died, and his chief claim to glory was that he had "rounded the Horn" thirty-three times. We know men in Kentucky who have rounded the horn thirty-three millions of times, and their chief claim to glory is that somebody else set 'em up.

Too Loud.

"Why do you have your choir behind the congregation?" a stranger asked a member of one of our fashionable churches.

"Well, I know it's fashion now to have it in front, and we used to have ours there. But you see that little tenor's new spring suit was so loud that nobody could hear the organ. We like the change very much and the music really seems to be better."

Some remarkable cures of deafness are recorded of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. Never fails to cure earache.

The Kappa Alpha is the oldest college secret society in this country. It was founded about 1825 at Union College Schenectady, N. Y.

Improvements in Progress.

If we may judge by the work now proceeding so actively in all parts of the town the spirit of energy and progress is not a stranger here. The Pennsylvania Railroad Company has kept quite a large force of workmen employed for several weeks raising the tracks and putting all things in readiness for the connection with the new line to Lemont.

Out on Allegheny street Messrs. Gray & Miller are at work on the Macmanus residence, rendering the roof fire proof with their patent preparation. The gang of men who are laying new water pipes are about completing that work. Major Wm. F. Reynolds is rushing his new house to completion as rapidly as the fine work upon it will permit. Among the recent exterior additions are a piazza extending around the southeast exposure of the house and one in the rear. The work upon it is carried on even at night, we infer from the fact that its interior was brightly illuminated Friday evening. All the people along Linn street have beautified the lawns and other surroundings of their houses.

On the corner of Lamb and Spring streets the long, low, rambling building used as a store room for the Steam Heating Company is bright with fresh paint. In the suburbs of the borough, along Curtin and Beaver streets, several small dwellings are being erected.

In the burned district the scene is one of perfect industry. The brick buildings have reached the second floor in height and will soon be ready for the roofs, and when finished will present one of the most compact blocks of substantial business houses in Bellefonte.

In the direction of the reservoir a few dwelling houses are in process of erection, while numerous minor improvements are being made. The painters, paperers and fence builders are kept busy in all parts of the town.

A Temperance Organization.

Friday evening a friend of the REPUBLICAN attended the meeting of the Band of Hope at the church at Valentines' Works. This society was organized about two years ago, Mrs. A. S. Valentine being the inspiring spirit in its organization and others entering cordially with her into the work. With the co-operation of the many friends of temperance a large Band of Hope has been built up from 150 to 200 assembling every Friday evening from all the surrounding country, even so far away as Snow Shoe Intersection, receiving valuable entertainment and instruction in this important cause.

Last evening three young men from Bellefonte were present for the purpose of giving a magic lantern exhibition. The house was filled, but the very best order was maintained. In addition to the magic lantern exhibition, remarks were made on the subject of temperance. A choir of young people gathered around the organ and sang several pieces with that spirit and earnestness which is always exhibited when the singers themselves seem to enjoy the exercise. Mrs. Frank P. Blair presided at the organ. After repeating the Lord's Prayer the audience was dismissed.

A Pleasant Social Occasion.

The hop given by the young gentlemen at the Brockerhoff House on Friday evening was one of the most agreeable social gatherings which has ever taken place in Bellefonte. In the beauty of the young ladies who were present and their elegant toilets it easily carries off the honors. We cannot mention all who were present and shall therefore refer only to those from a distance. Miss Grace Kintzing, of Lock Haven, attracted much attention by her beauty and grace of manner and superb toilet. She rendered all very happy who had the pleasure of paying her especial social attention. Another favorite was Miss Harris. Other Lock Haven young ladies were Misses Eva, Minnie and Helen Simpson; Miss Bachellor Mrs. Ball and Miss Mellek. Miss Read represented Norristown society with royal grace. Howard was represented in the persons of Mr. and Mrs. Burnside. Three gentlemen from Lock Haven, viz: Messrs. Will Simpson, Pierce Kintzing and Hampton Yardley, made the gathering more enjoyable by their presence. Dr. Wimmer, of St. Mary's, proved to be a welcome accession to the company. Altoona's gallant gentlemen contributed Dr. Christy, and Messrs. George Lovell, W. McConkey and John Blumer. Mr. Richard Beastion, of Tyrone, was present and is indispensable to the completeness of al such affairs.

Choice refreshments, very fine music and a cool, refreshing evening for dancing, contributed to the perfection of this delightful occasion.

—Prof. Jule Neff's orchestra, of Altoona, rendered the music at the hop last evening.

State Teachers' Association.

Mr. J. Q. Stewart, chairman of the executive committee, announces that the thirty-first annual meeting of the Pennsylvania State Teachers' Association will be held in the opera house at Harrisburg, on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, July 7th, 8th and 9th. The programme has been carefully prepared by the executive committee, and all arrangements for a successful meeting have been completed. Orders for excursion tickets on the several railroads can be procured by addressing J. F. Sickle, Germantown, Pa., not later than July 3d. Hotels and boarding houses will make the usual reduction in rates to members of the Association. An excursion to Gettysburg has been arranged for Friday, July 10th. Fare for the round trip will not exceed $1.25. An excursion has also been arranged to Fortress Monroe, Richmond and Washington, returning to Harrisburg within ten days. The excursion party will go from Baltimore to Fortress Monroe, 118 miles, by steamer. The round trip ticket will cost $9.

A Great Mistake.

Dr. Smith, a famed scientist, declares the seventeen-year-locusts entirely harmless. Prof. Jos. Leidyl confirms this opinion. Prof. Reily goes further and proves, by serving them up on his table as a dainty dish, that they are really deserving of invitation to come frequently. All these authorities agree that this is the year for them. But, behold, Prof. Chas. L. Gates, of Bellefonte, comes forward with the astounding assertion that this is not the year for their appearance. He says that they were in the vicinity of Loveville, this county, in 1872, as numerous as mosquitos at the sea shore. At that time he was either 11 or 9 years of age, he does not seem to be certain which. He says they are about as long as a grasshopper and just as pretty, although he did not order any served for breakfast. He contends, with much emphasis, that their next appearance will be in 1889. If what Prof. Gates says is correct there will be less activity in the microscope market as nobody will care to buy one to aid them in a search for the locusts.

—Look to your currant bushes now on the first appearance of the currant worm apply white hellebore and save your crop and your bushes. You can get the hellebore at the drug store; Pour hot water over it at the rate of a heaped tablespoonful of hellebore to two gallons of water; let it stand until it cools and sprinkle the bushes whenever the worms appear. One application will do for one brood of worms, but there are often three or four broods in a season and the remedy must be applied as often as they appear. It is the only sure remedy.—Bedford Inquirer.

—Walter Bayard started to Snow Shoe last Friday—"to fish," he said and promised to send us some trout that evening. He was elegantly dressed (not at all like a fisherman) and carried an umbrella and traveling satchel—for fishing tackle. We do not forget that Philipsburg can be reached in a half-hour's ride from Snow Shoe, and if Walter will keep his promise and send us some of the "speckled beauties" he catches there we'll be satisfied.

—Stewart Africa, a resident of McConnellstown, Huntingdon county, was thrown from a load of lumber on Wednesday and the lumber falling on him broke his right leg and otherwise bruised him.

Educational.

What will be done during the vacation with the Bellefonte Academy? The present term of school will soon end and if any arrangements are to be made for the improvement of this institution they should be made then. In suggesting this, we do not mean to intimate that it is not now as good a school as the facilities at hand will permit; but money is required to give it all the advantages which modern education requires. Those students who have graduated from it have done themselves and the institution much honor. In several of the most important colleges of the country the Bellefonte Academy is recognized as a most excellent preparatory school merely because of the high standing of those who have entered these colleges after receiving preparatory education at the Academy. This reason, of itself, should be sufficient to induce the managers of the institution to render it more inviting that others may be induced to take advantage of that study and training which is so superior. But the intelligence, refinement and enterprise of Bellefonte deserve such a building, such equipments and such grounds as strangers will look at to admire, and which are worthy the skill and experience of its principal, Rev. Jas. P. Hughes, and his competent corps of assistants.

—On the 21st of May the REPUBLICAN noticed the death of Elwood N. Wait, son of Mrs. Rebecca Wait, who was formerly a resident of this place, being a sister of Mrs. Sayre and also of the late Mrs. Ardell. A. Waukegan Ill., paper of May 16, contains the following in reference to him: "In our obituary notices this week appears a record of the death of Mr. Elwood N. Wait, son of Col. B. Wait, and son-in-law of Mrs. O. S. Lincoln, of this city. Mr. Wait had been in poor health for some time past. He spent the winter in Colorado, but not receiving any benefit, returned, and after visiting his family for a few days in Chicago, went to Grand Rapids, hoping the change might prove beneficial. He was there with his parents only three days before death relieved him from suffering. His disease was consumption of the larynx, and though suffering intensely he endured it all without a murmur, manifesting a perfect resignation and patience to the end. The remains were brought by his parents to Waukegan for interment, the obsequies being held at the residence of Mrs. Lincoln. Mr. Wait leaves a widow with two little daughters, who, with a large circle of friends, deeply mourn his early death.

—At the corner of Linn and Allegheny streets on Wednesday night deep trenches and high ridges of earth presented an almost impassable barrier to those who walked or drove that way. The scene at night looked wild and dangerous, the electric light penetrating to the deep depths of the yawning caverns, and one could imagine that the earthquake which visited the Vale of Cashmere had also affected that particular spot. Mr. Thomas Shaughensey, the street commissioner, was afraid that, with all his precautions, someone would fall into the trenches and kept guard during the silent watch of the night.

The Marksmen.

On Wednesday afternoon several members of Company B, N. G., went to the fair ground to engage in the first marksmanship practice of the season. The distance was 200 yards and the result was as follows:

Hilder	5	2	5	5	2—17
Geissinger	5	4	4	5	4—22
Mullen	5	4	5	2	4—16
Walters	4	4	5	3	4—18
Rankin	4	4	3	4	3—18

It was Robert Rankin's first attempt and the result shows that he averages about as high as the majority of them. The soldiers will practice regularly during the summer.

—It is probable that the Logan Hose Company will accept the invitation to go to Lewisburg, on July 4, the acceptance depending in some degree on the completion of the B., N. and L. Railroad, as they will travel over that new line if finished. We hear that the celebration at Lewisburg will be very elaborate as it is the centennial of the founding of that town. Invitations have been sent to all the civic and other societies in the vicinity and twenty thousand visitors are expected to do honor to the occasion.

—There is one objection to the cheap postage that is to go into effect July 1. An ounce letter will be allowed to be transmitted for two cents. The objection is advanced that many a girl in love will scruple to break an engagement on receipt of a letter from her best fellow, if it does not tip the scales to the exact ounce dot—and there are plenty of 'em would do it. Already orders are sent dealers for pocket scales. Boys, remember the adage: "An ounce of prevention,' &c.—Huntingdon Monitor.

—The commencement exercises of the Central State Normal School at Lock Haven will begin on Sunday evening, June 28, with the baccalaureate sermon. B. R., B. and B. E. Railroad.

—The Literary Society of the Y. M. C. A. will hold an ice cream festival on Saturday evening, June 20, the proceeds of which will be devoted to what is known as the Y. M. C. A. carpet fund. We hope that the effort being made by these young gentlemen to purchase a new carpet will be successful.

—The Lock Haven Express is not very enterprising in giving news in regard to the Warriorsmark murder. A dispatch in the Express of the 4th instant, dated June 3, was published in the Daily News of the 2d instant and due credit given to the Pittsburg Commercial Gazette of June 1, from which it was obtained.

—The mercury Saturday morning registered 37° above zero. Rev. Zeigler, the green-house man, said that there was frost at Snow Shoe Intersection, although residents of the higher parts of Bellefonte failed to notice any here.

—The furnace at the village of Pennsylvania Furnace, on the line between Centre and Huntingdon counties, in the Spruce Creek Valley, has been put in operation, giving employment to more than a hundred men.

—There will be no service, except Sunday-school, in the Lutheran church on Sunday. Rev. Chas. Steck has accepted the call extended to him, but the date of beginning his ministrations here has not yet been fixed.

—The fourth biennial convention of the Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary society of the Lutheran church opened, as per announcement, in the beautiful town of York, on the evening of June 2, and closed on the evening of June 4th.

—The public school grounds, especially on the north side, are becoming lovelier daily. There are two rows of handsome trees inside the yard and one just outside the fence on Linn street, which are young yet, but which when they grow larger will present a very fine appearance and furnish cool and inviting shade.

—The building on Bishop street in which Bauer's and Spangler's stores are located was struck by lightning Sunday night. The part most damaged was that occupied by Mr. E. J. Swavely and family as a dwelling. Mr. S. was leaning out the window in lieu of a lightning rod and the electric fluid played pranks about his person, tearing off his night clothing, but not injuring him at all. After leaving Mr. Swavely the bolt descended through Spangler's storeroom to the ground, without materially damaging the building. All the occupants of the house were frightened.

The Storm King.

WIND, RAIN, HAIL, LIGHTNING AND THUNDER HOLD A PICNIC IN CENTRE COUNTY.

All day Sunday the elements were threatening, but the evening was clear and pleasant, and the general verdict of the people at bedtime was that there would be no rain during the night—except, perhaps, people who had barometers to consult.

But between 10 and 11 o'clock from a dozen or more points all along the horizon the lightning darted and flashed toward the zenith, illuminating the sky with a perfect blaze of electric glory, in comparison with which the most brilliant pyrotecnics of man's device are but as a tallow dip to the noon-day sun. Those who admire these electric exhibitions opened their window curtains and watched it until they fell asleep. Those who dread the flashes tightly closed their curtains and also their eyes.

So the lightning continued all night, storm succeeding storm, low rumbling thunder being heard continuously with an occasional bolt as if the cannonading of the enemy in the air were drawing nearer. One we especially noticed, between sleeps It shook the very hills and made houses sway on their foundations. The rain came down in drenching showers. It pattered and splashed against the window panes. It fell in floods on the roofs and ran down into the gutters. It flooded the streets, converting them into temporary rivers. It swept through the grain fields and perhaps did as much in the way of washing the tender sprouts from the ground as it hastened their growth. In truth, it was appalling—the greatest storm that has raged in this vicinity for a year or two, and in some parts of the county it was quite unprecedented.

The principal damage in Bellefonte was at the corner of Bishop and Allegheny streets where Bunnell & Aikens' new building is in process of construction. The gutters were filled up with mortar boxes and other debris and the large volume of water which always flows along the street on the occasion of a storm, forced in the freshly-built cellar wall and filled the cellar with two feet of water and mud.

Along the Bald Eagle the storm raged with particular fury. At 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon a hail storm prevailed, hail stones as large as a walnut falling and doing great damage. There is not a house in the village in which window lights were not broken, and people were so greatly terrified that they slept but little during the night. At midnight a storm of wind and rain raged, two houses and several barns being blown down. As an example of the damage by hail it is said that sixty-four window lights were broken in the hotel alone.

LATER FROM EAGLEVILLE.

We are truly obliged to an Eagleville correspondent who, to use his own words, "had parties canvass the town" of Eagleville to obtain information for the REPUBLICAN relative to the damage by the great storm Sunday night. He says:

"We had a regular nor'wester here Sunday night. About 6 o'clock p. m. two heavy clouds met directly over our town, and such a storm of hail this place never before witnessed, at least in our time. In less than three minutes 2321 lights of glass of all sizes were broken. To add to the horror, heavy rain and wind struck us about 11 p. m., fairly filling the houses with water. The wind carried away one dwelling and one barn, and upset the house of Mr. Torrence Crotzer. His wife fell down stairs and was seriously hurt. Part of the roof of the Disciple church was carried away. Daniel Bitner had forty-five apple and a number of other trees blown down. All the gardens seem to be a total wreck. The storm belt was not more than one-half mile in width. Have not heard of much damage outside of this village."

Resolutions Adopted by Gregg Post.

At the last regular meeting of Gregg Post, 95, Dept. of Pa., the following resolutions of thanks were adopted and approved:

Resolved, That Mrs. E. T. Tuten, Mrs. Amos Mullen, Mrs. Joseph Fees, Mrs. D. M. Glenn, Mrs. S. H. Williams, Mrs. Sheridan, Miss Sallie Benner, Mrs. Gen'l Curtin, Mrs. David Bartley and Mrs. H. A. Williams, the Ladies Aid Committee on Floral Decorations for Memorial Day last, receive our special thanks for their invaluable services, without whose labors the occasion would have lacked in the artistic arrangement of the flowers so liberally offered in memory of deceased comrades.

Resolved, 2d, That to the generous donors of the flowers, mostly composed of children of tender and sympathetic age, we shall ever be grateful in the name and spirit of the departed, to whom the obligation of Memorial Day is a consecrated symbol of remembrances.

Resolved, 3d, That in acknowledgement of services rendered this Post of the G. A. R. on Memorial Day, we cannot refrain from a special mention of the support given to the services in the cemetery by the principal of the public schools of Bellefonte, Mr. D. M. Lieb, not only on this occasion but for several anniversaries of the day in recent years.

Resolved, 4th, And to that little band marshalled by Mr. Lieb, from whose hands the veterans received the flowers in their march through the cemetery we proudly say "Thank you, young friends."

Resolved, 5th, That the expression which the fine vocal music gave to the ritual service of handling the flowers in the cemetery cannot be lost in the memoir of the hymn "Strew them with flowers" sung by the choir of gentlemen who kindly lent their voices for the occasion, nor its effect soon forgotten.

Resolved, 6th, That Gregg Post thanks the people of Bellefonte generally for the support and good will in carrying out the services of their order of the G. A. R. for Memorial Day, which are so arranged as to be enjoyed and participated in by all organizations of citizens; and, we earnestly importune such organizations and individuals who are in sympathy with us to emulate the noble example of the National Guard of this place, the Logan Hose company and the Sons of Veterans, who by joining in the ranks have given a full support to the day we all commemorate.

Resolved, finally, That the forgoing resolutions be printed into the newspapers of this place.

Approved. D. S. KELLER,
Commander Post 95.
Committee on resolutions.

A Grand Excursion to Lewisburg on the Fourth of July.

Bellefonte will have no celebration of her own on the Fourth of July. She don't want any, for she has frequently celebrated in the past and is willing to give others a chance. But what better or more appropriate mode of celebration can there be for Bellefonte than to have an excursion to Lewisburg over the new railroad?

Fourth of July will be a great occasion in the history of Lewisburg. She will celebrate the centennial of her existence and expects to have a stunning time of it. She hasn't invited the citizens of Bellefonte to come and see her on that occasion, but we hereby suggest to her the propriety of doing so at once. Just think of it! The two towns will then be wedded by rails. The road will have been finished and that event is of itself worthy a celebration of this character.

Now, as to the details of the excursion. The Logan Hose Company, who have been specially invited, want to go on the evening of the 3d. But if a big excursion is planned they will doubtless be willing to wait until the morning of the Fourth to act as an escort to their good-looking fellow citizens. The distance to Lewisburg, by rail, is 60 miles. This end of the road is new and it would be necessary for an excursion train to move slowly over the new part. But it is being well built and ballasted and if the train would start at 6 o'clock on the morning of the Fourth Lewisburg could be reached by 9 o'clock. As the Fourth is on Saturday it will be desirable and perhaps better for all concerned to start home again early—say 4 o'clock, reaching Bellefonte about 7. This will give 7 hours in Lewisburg. The excursion fare for the round trip, 120 miles, it is believed can be fixed at about $1.50—perhaps less.

We imagine that about a thousand excursionists might start from this station and others will be picked up all along the route. If a general desire is expressed for such an excursion one will be arranged. Let the people express their sentiments and let Lewisburg send along her invitation and co-operate with Bellefonte in effecting arrangements.

Death of Master Claude Bible.

After a lingering illness of brain fever, during which he often approached so near death's door, that it was almost thought life had indeed left the body, Claude Bible, oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Bible, died Tuesday morning at 11.30 o'clock. He had been sick more than two weeks and at least a week ago, the physicians thought that death was very near. But he would revive again and seem to recognize his friends.

He was a very bright boy and it will be hard for his parents to give him up, but they may be comforted by the thought that he was innocent and pure—perhaps too good for this world—and has been called to a better home than the best that can be provided here.

The funeral will be on Thursday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock.

Death of Mrs. Eliza Rankin.

This much esteemed and lamented lady died at her home in Orbisonia, Huntingdon county, on Friday afternoon, the 5th instant, aged 70 years. Her remains reached Bellefonte Saturday morning, and were interred in Howard street cemetery Sunday afternoon. The funeral services were held at the residence of James H. Rankin, Esq., on Thomas street, at 2 o'clock p. m.

The deceased was the eldest daughter of Robert Furey, Sr., and a sister of Mrs. Barbara A. Rankin, of this place, wife of James H. Rankin, Esq. The sisters married brothers, the name of Eliza's husband being William Rankin, now 72 years old. She was a sister of Robert Furey, of Johnston's type foundry in Philadelphia, and also of Henry L. Furey, who died many years ago, and who was the father of Conductor W. P. Furey, of the Pennsylvania railroad. The only surviving members of the deceased's immediate family are her husband and two daughters—Mrs. Charles Curtis, of Montrose, Iowa, and Miss Laura Rankin. Robert Furey and Mrs. B. A. Rankin are the only survivors of Robert Furey, Sr's, family.

The deceased lady had been in poor health for some time past, and her illness culminated in something like paralysis, which ended a life notable for its goodness, its charitableness and its kindness to everybody. She was a resident of Bellefonte many years ago, and also of Broadtop. She was born in Spring township, this county, and was a devoted church member—one of the best of women and mothers.

—The Presbyterian congregation was on Sunday favored with a talk about Bulgaria. A native of that country, who is now attending Princeton Seminary, was in the pulpit, and described to the congregation the religion, manners and characteristics of the people. So far as the acceptance of anything new is concerned, the speaker represented them as slow and conservative. Like the people of Scotland, it requires something as forcible as a pile-driver to convince them, but once convinced it takes something even stronger to eradicate that conviction. Those who become Protestant Christians in that country do so at the risk of social ostracism, and in the case of a son or daughter at the risk of disinheritance. There is now, he said, no Presbyterian mission in Bulgaria, and it is the ambition of the speaker to receive such training at Princeton Seminary as will enable him to work for the religious elevation of his countrymen. Such contributions as were made outside the envelopes on Sunday morning were given to the gentleman for this purpose. We understand that Rev. Laurie accompanied him to State College in the afternoon.

Band of Hope Picnic.

The annual picnic of the Band of Hope under the auspices of the W. C. T. U., will be held to-day (Thursday.) As this organization comprises about 250 members, and a full attendance can always be relied upon at a picnic or festival, we feel sure those who are interested in temperance work among the children, will gladly aid in contributing cake or money for the necessary expenses. We do not, for reasons we deem wise, ask the children to give more than 5 cents—and that only if they are able—and as the funds of our W. C. T. U. were about exhausted after the two weeks tour of Mrs. McLaughlin through our county, we appeal to the generosity of our friends to assist in making this day one which the children will look back upon with pleasure.

—Mr. John Cooney, son of our well-known citizen, Mr. Larry Cooney, was taken away last Monday to an insane asylum. His case is one that is very sad and his friends have sincere sympathy of all. There is every reason to believe that he will soon recover from what is only a temporary insanity caused by illness. He came from Altoona about two weeks ago, quite ill with what was said to be brain fever. He is a plumber and had worked during the spring too industriously, over-work causing his illness. His sickness affected his mind, and it was considered advisable to take him immediately where he will receive the best and most experienced treatment.

—We heard a lady recently remark that Linn street is the dirtiest in Bellefonte. By this she did not refer to the fact that it is dug up to lay water pipes (because that is unavoidable), but the truth is there are piles of debris along the east end of the street which are very unsightly and should be removed.

—The contracts for repairing and painting the Court House have been awarded. Mr. Wm. Steele and Mr. Andy Loneberger were the successful contractors.
